Pay 'em Back--'Buy Bonds to Blast Tokyo' and Make It 'A Million By Monday'

MANSFIELDERS who raged helplessly—with the rest of America over the barbarous slaying of American airmen taken prisoner in the U. S. raid on Tokyo today were offered a suggestion for a way to get revenge.

The suggestion came from Henry G. Brunner and Paul M. Eliot, and you may have already guessed what it is. It's:

"BUY BONDS TO BLAST TOKYO."

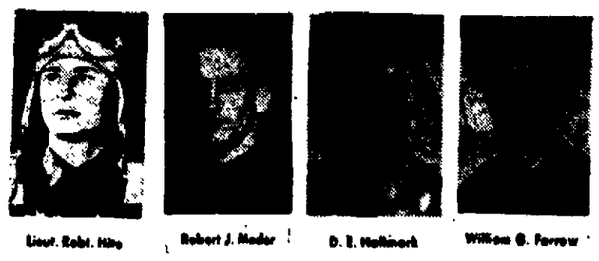
Brunner and Eliot are, as you know, co-chairmen of the second war loan drive, attempting to raise in Richland county $6,649,000 of the national goal of $13,000,000,000 for April.

They suggested to all Mansfielders who would like to have a personal hand in making the Japanese pay for their admitted atrocity that the best—and actually the only—way to do so was with dollars that will buy bombs that American fliers can take back to Tokyo.

They suggested that irate Mansfielders also adopt this slogan:

"A Million By Monday."

What they mean is that a million dollars in war bond purchases is needed by Monday to bring the county in sight of its $6,649,000 goal.



Lieut. Robt. Hite | Robert J. Meder | D. R. Hallmark | William G. Farrow

Here are four of the eight American airmen the Japs captured. They may have been among those put to death. Your bonds will help avenge their deaths.

The total subscribed to date is $4,259,858. That leaves $2,390,000 yet to be raised by the end of April if the county is to reach its allotted total.

Yesterday, Brunner and Eliot reported, bond purchases hit a new low for the month, only $39,369. At that rate, the county would fall far short of a "million by Monday."

But both Brunner and Eliot hope that the thought of the brave American fliers who paid with their lives at the hands of barbaric Japanese for their attack on military objectives in the raid on Tokyo a year ago will bring in a flood of bond dollars from Mansfielders.

By now every Mansfielder knows that American fliers can't go back to Tokyo without planes and bombs and ships—and that it is going to take a lot of their dollars to buy those planes and bombs and ships. The American airmen, tight-lipped as they think of the fate of their comrades, will do the rest.

Would it make you any angrier, and any more anxious to help raise that "million by Monday" to know that whatever civilian casualties there were in the Tokyo raid—the alleged act for which the American fliers were put to death—were caused by Japanese fighter planes themselves?

Take the word of Robert Bellaire, who before the war was United Press manager in Japan, and was immediately imprisoned on a high hill overlooking Tokyo after Pearl Harbor.

In a dispatch received by the News-Journal today, he wrote:

"I saw the raiders hit Tokyo during air raid maneuvers. The American bombers swept over the city at a maximum of 60 feet off the ground. Japanese pursuit planes attempting to dive upon the well camouflaged bombers missed with most of their machine gun fire, which hit the streets.

"Japanese with whom I was allowed to speak later admitted their own planes, diving on the low flying American bombers, were responsible for the civilian deaths."

Bellaire, now in this country, wrote that he wasn't surprised that American fliers had been killed, because it was just like the Japs to do that.

The sooner Americans have the planes and bombs to return to Tokyo, again and again—and Major General Henry H. Arnold of the United States air forces has promised that they will—the sooner America can exact just retribution for Japan's crime.

The sooner we all buy bonds and more bonds, the sooner Japan will be brought to her knees.

Remember, then, to:

"Buy Bombs to Blast Tokyo" and make it "A Million By Monday."

SCORE NAVY'S 'HUSH HUSH' ON SINKINGS

Truman Investigators Demand Positive Action, Bare 1942 Loss of 12 Million Tons.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The senate Truman committee, revealing that United Nations ship losses to submarines in 1942 were around 12,000,000 tons, today assailed the navy department's "hush, hush" policy about sinkings and its "unimaginative" anti-submarine campaign.

In its 22nd report on the war program, the committee recommended that the navy "be less conventional and conservative in its thinking, that it spend less time propounding explanations to why unfortunate situations have occurred, and that it devise and use substitutes and new methods as are necessary to obtain production."

But it said that the overall shipbuilding program "must be considered a tremendous success" and the U-boats will be beaten. It pointed out that 8,090,800 deadweight tons of cargo shipping were produced by American yards in 1942, and estimated that 8,000,000 to 9,000,000 tons will be produced this year.

It commended the navy for doing "a magnificent job in building a first class fighting fleet." It said the fleet's "quality is extremely high, and the quantity is increasing each month." It paid particular tribute to anti-aircraft defenses which have been installed on warships since Pearl Harbor.

It said the navy was slow to "realize the importance of submarines" and was slow in getting its destroyer escort and corvette programs under way. Discussing the navy's antipathy toward new developments and its unwillingness to standardize models, it said:

"The time has passed when we

Second Mansfield Soldier Prisoner Of Japs, Wire Says

A second Mansfield soldier, among the eight who were on Bataan when the peninsula fell into enemy hands more than a year ago, is a prisoner of the Japanese in the Philippines.

A telegram from the war department informed Fred Zimmerman, of north of Mansfield, that his brother, Pvt. George Zimmerman, member of a tank corps that took part in the historic defense of the island of Luzon had been captured.

Earlier this week Mrs. Adeline Robinette, of west of Mansfield, received word that her son, Pvt. John Robinette was held prisoner.

The telegram to Zimmerman said that a letter of verification would follow.

Fate of six others, four of whom were members of the tank corps to which Robinette and Zimmerman were attached, is still a mystery.

In the tank battalion were Sgt. A. L. Allen, Paul Grassick, Earl

WASHINGTON—Despite abandonment of efforts to negotiate a compromise, the house today appeared assured of another vote on pay-as-you-go tax legislation as the ways and means committee prepared to meet tomorrow to report a new Democratic-sponsored bill.

Chairman Doughton (D) N. C., indicated that the new measure would cancel approximately 41 per cent of the 1942 tax burden and would offer additional abatement to those taxpayers willing to pay the uncancelled portion of their liabilities at an early date

The Republicans meantime, gave notice that they would sponsor two substitute proposals, one of them being a still-further modified Rumi plan, and the other embracing a formula which would cancel be-

SEEKS BIDS ON ROAD REPAIRS

County To Have Part of Work Done By Private Contract Due To Heavy Damage.

For the first time in more than 15 year a part of the repair work on Richland county gravel roads will be done by private contractors. Bids for about half of the repair program will be let April 30, County Engineer H. C. Sword said today.

Owing to the extensive damages occasioned by the unusually severe winter, coupled with the labor shortage, the job is greater than county highway workmen would be able to accomplish with the use of their present equipment, Sword explained. Purchase of additional equipment is not possible, he said, under the priorities order which permits purchase of only necessary replacements.

Only a few contractors have made inquiries concerning the repair jobs to be let, Sword revealed, giving rise to the belief that there will be few bidders for the work.

Commissioners Reveal Cost Cut, Hit Mayor's Failure To Inquire About It.

Mayor W. J. Locke's contemplated probe of Richland county relief administration costs received a set-back today when county commissioners revealed they laid off two relief employes more than two weeks ago in a move to reduce expenses at the county relief office.

Apparently uninformed of the county's retrenchment move, the mayor announced yesterday that he had asked a state welfare department investigator to meet with him and Service-Safety Director Fred B Wolff next Monday to study administration costs. He said the cost of county relief administration seemed too high in view of the dwindling case load.

Commissioners today said they reduced the relief staff from five to three members April 5 and slashed $205 from the monthly administration expenses.

Harmon, on Way to Florida, Describes Jungle Journey

(By International News Service)

SAN JUAN, P. R.—Lieut. Tom Harmon, former all-American football star, was en route to Florida today following his harrowing experience in the jungles of South America where his army plane crashed.

Parachuting his way to safety, the Ann Arbor, Mich., flier spent seven days hacking his way through jungle undergrowth from the crash scene in Brazil to return to civilization.

Upon his arrival at an air task force base in Dutch Guiana he recounted his experiences after the crash of his ship on April 8. Lieut. Harmon was weak from exposure and malnutrition.

The crash killed Staff Sgt. James F. Goodwin, of Texarkana, Tex., the engineer, and Sgt. Leonard D. Gunnels, gunner of Deatsville, Ala.

Three others, Second Lieut. Edwin J. Wolff, of Philadelphia, Second Lieut. Frederick O. Wieting of Lansing, Mich., and Staff Sgt. Bernard R. Cóss of Mendota, Ill., are missing.

The crash came, Harmon said, when one engine quit as he was attempting to descend through a hole in heavy clouds during a

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— The United States will not undertake reprisals against Japanese prisoners in American hands for the execution of American fliers captured after the raid on Tokyo, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson said today.

By KINGSBURY SMITH

(INS Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — As the nation's capital seethed with furious indignation, American army flyers the world over today carried orders to destroy the Japanese airforce and blast Nippon in revenge for the torture and execution of some of the eight captured airmen who participated in Maj. James H. Doolittle's raid on Tokyo a year ago.

It appears that at least two and possibly three of the American flyers were executed on alleged charges of bombing non-military objectives and firing on civilians. Fate of the others is unknown beyond the fact that the Japanese government claims their sentence of death was commuted.

As the American government moved to establish responsibility for Japan's criminal violation of the rules of warfare, Gen. Henry

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—German forces attacked the British First army's positions in the Medjez-El-Bab sector of northern Tunisia Tuesday night with between 60 and 80 tanks and at least five infantry battalions, but the British forces destroyed 25 of the enemy tanks, took 500 prisoners and beat back the assault, an Allied communique said today.

On the southern front, where the British Eighth army has advanced beyond Enfidaville, the Germans also made two major counter-attacks, but these too were repulsed by massed artillery "with very heavy loss to the enemy," it was announced.

In addition, the Eighth army succeeded in improving its positions and the communique said all its gains were firmly held.

Declares U. S. Casualties In North Africa 'Terrific'

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Roane Waring, national commander of the American Legion, demanded today that Japanese cities be razed in retaliation for the execution of American fliers.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Col. Roane Waring, national commander of the American Legion, who has just returned from a tour of the North African battlefronts, today declared that American casualties there have been "terrific"—many more than the 3,000 that the army has announced

Waring, at a news conference, solemnly reported:

"Our people have taken terrific casualties. They have lost a lot of material. They have taken a lot of hard blows. That has got to be expected."

At another point, Waring said that "there are many more casualties" than those announced by Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of Allied forces in North Africa. At the same time the Legion leader asserted that there are going to be "lots more" casualties before the Tunisian campaign is over and still more when "the big battle of Europe" starts.

Waring stated:

"The casualties announced so far cover only the Tunisian campaign. They do not include many more casualties which we have suffered. Rommel (German field marshal) has dug in and before we get Rommel out of Tunisia we are going to have lots more casualties. The Amer-

British Promise Reprisals If Nazis Use Poison Gas

U. S. FURIOUS AT SLAYINGS OF TOKYO RAIDERS

American Fliers Told To Get Vengeance For Inhuman Treatment of Yanks.

H. Arnold, chief of the army air forces, ordered every army flyer throughout the world to redouble his efforts toward wiping out the Japanese air force and destroying the "inhuman warlords" in reprisal for the execution of their "brave comrades."

Congress also echoed with demands for revenge. The general opinion of a fighting-mad congress was that the most effective method of retaliation would be to strengthen America's forces in the Pacific so that this country's fighting men could avenge the torture and execution of the American flyers.

Some members of congress also expressed the hope that Japan's cities may soon be blasted by new air raids as America's answer to the cold-blooded murder of Gen. Doolittle's captured airmen.

That there would be further destruction heaped upon Japan was evident in Gen. Arnold's emphatic designation of the attack on the Nipponese capital a year ago as "the first Tokyo raid." In his message, Gen Arnold underlined the word, "first."

Gen. Arnold's message to "all personnel of the army air forces," was:

"In violation of every rule of military procedure and every concept of human decency, the Japanese have executed several of your brave comrades who took part in the FIRST Tokyo raid. These men died as heroes. We must not rest—we must redouble our efforts until the inhuman war lords who committed this crime have been utterly destroyed.

"Remember those comrades when you get a 'Zero' in your sights—have their sacrifice before you when you line up your bomb sights on a Japanese base.

"You have demonstrated the Japanese cannot master you in aerial combat or in bombardment.

"Let your answer to their treatment of your comrades be the destruction of the Japanese air force, their lines of communication and the production centers which offer them opportunity to continue such atrocities."

State and war department officials rejected the idea of retaliation against Japanese war prisoners held by American forces on the grounds that it would be inhuman and beneath the dignity of this country to resort to the same barbaric practices.

Crushing blows against the Nippon empire's military machine by strengthening American fighting forces was considered the best answer to the Japanese warlords' barbarity.

Meanwhile, the state department was working on a record of the case so that those directly and indirectly responsible for the mistreatment and execution of the American flyers can be brought to justice before a military tribunal as soon as United Nations forces march through the streets of Tokyo.

The view prevailed in high state department quarters that Premier Hideki Tojo, Japan's No. 1 warlord, and other members of the Japanese government must bear the ultimate responsibility for the crime.

While stern punishment is favored for the Japanese officers and men directly responsible for the torture and murder of the flyers, the state department takes the position that responsibility for what President Roosevelt described as "diabolical crimes" rests with the government that permitted them to be committed.

Immediate military trial of all Japanese officials connected directly or indirectly with the crime, from Tojo right on down the line to the firing squad that presumably executed the flyers, is likely to be demanded by the American government when the day of retribution arrives. If Tojo is captured alive and convicted of responsibility for the crime, some American officials advocate death by hanging as punishment.

The state department is redoubling its efforts to try to ascertain the identity of the men executed. Demands for the identity of the men, and for information as to what has happened to the others are being made through the Swiss government, which represents American interests in Japan.

So far, the Japanese government has failed to give any satisfactory information beyond stating that all the captured flyers were sentenced to death, and that following commutation of the sentence "for the larger number of them," the sentence of death was "applied to certain of the accused." Japanese radio broadcasts have asserted that severe penalties were being imposed on all of them.

Rep. Rankin, (D.,Miss.,) summed up congressional opinion by declaring that the "savage" action of the Japanese "ought to be a warning to us that Japan is our permanent and most dangerous enemy from now until the Nippon empire is destroyed."

Republican House Leader Martin said "It is shocking to realize that any nation could be so barbarous as the Japs have indicated by their actions." "It will, he added, "strengthen the determination of the American people to fight this war to complete victory. That action will be avenged."

Rep. Marcantoni, (A-L) of New York, and Rep. Manasco, (D.,Ala.) said American forces henceforth should take no Japanese prisoners.

Speaker Rayburn described the Japanese action as a "gruesome thing." "It showed the kind of enemy we are fighting," he said.

Branding the incident "the most tragic thing that has come out of this war," Sen. Chandler (D., Ky.) said he will press for action for stricter supervision of enemy aliens in the United States.

"The American people will not feel like treating disloyal Japanese in this country well when they are murdering our boys," he added.

Ohio Mother Sure Son's Still Safe

CLEVELAND—(U P)—Mrs John J. Meder, Lakewood, mother of Lieut. Robert J. Meder, who was among the American fliers captured in the Tokyo raid, said today she was sure her son was still alive and had not been executed by the Japanese.

"I have just heard more about the president's announcement that some of our fliers were executed and that some were granted a stay of execution," she said. "The Japanese just can't be so heartless and inhuman as all that."

"I am going to await good news about Robert, even if I have to wait for six months after the duration, and even later," she said.

Wrath Sweeps Over Santa Ana Air Base

SANTA ANA, Cal.—(INS)—A wave of wrath swept over the Santa Ana army air base today as aviation cadets in training promised to avenge American fliers executed by the Japanese after the bombing of Tokyo.

From pilot to bombardier, tail-gunner to navigator all were eager to get into action against "the little, yellow———," the base's public relations office reported.

Aviation Cadet Gerald F. Johnson of Long Beach, Cal., in blunt words, short and to the point, spoke for the pilots in training.

"I'm not surprised. Typical Japanese trick. Can't trust the little ———. I wish I were in a ship right now to help pay 'em back. Make us work harder than ever here."

Yanks In London Angry At Killings

LONDON—(U P)—"The dirty little blankety-blanks, are going to get what's coming to them."

That—without the blanks—was the language American troops in London used today to give vent to violent emotions touched off by Japan's execution of United States airmen who raided Tokyo.

Staff Sgt. William J. Baumgartner, Parkersburg, W. Va., who was in Honolulu in the early part of the war said—"I wish to hell I was back out there. These Germans sometimes aren't human, but Japs are worse."

Technical Sgt Edward Cinkole, Cleveland said—"it was pretty damned rotten of them to do a thing like that."

Corporal Forrest Thornton, St Albans, W. Va. said—, "let's go get 'em."

U. S. Fliers Treated Well In Russia

MEDFORD, Ore.—(AP)—Lieut. Robert G Emmens, one of the fliers who participated in the bombing of Tokyo and who now is interned in Russia, reports he and his companions are being well treated.

They chop wood for exercise, he wrote to his wife, and the Russians have moved the only piano in town into their quarters.

Tokyo Hints Others Will Be Executed

(By United Press)

The Tokyo radio said today that President Roosevelt's protest against the execution of American airmen who raided Japan last year cannot be taken seriously and hinted that similar punishment will be meted out to any fliers captured in future raids on that country.

He defended Japan as "perfectly justified in severely punishing American fliers found guilty of carrying out wanton attacks on innocent civilians, hospitals and schools."

Another Tokyo broadcast said: "Make sure every flier that comes here has a special pass to hell, and rest assured it's strictly a one-way ticket.

"The American authorities seem to have a one-sided illusion that only American planes can carry out long-range bombing

"Remember, two can play at the game. You know—you raid us we raid you. It's all part of the war, Americans."

NEW PAY-GO TAX VOTE ASSURED

Compromise Fails, But Both Parties Plan To Offer Special Measures.

tween 50 and 75 per cent of the 1942 tax burden.

With the Democrats holding a 15 to 10 majority, the committee is expected to report the Doughton bill to the house tomorrow or Saturday. House leaders hope to bring the legislation to a vote next week.

Prospects of another major fight along party lines were heightened by the Republican intentions to offer both of the GOP substitute proposals as amendments to the Doughton bill when it reaches the floor.

Six consecutive days of negotiations on a compromise came to an end late yesterday when the ranking Democratic and Republican members of the committee emerged from a brief but final session announcing that they had abandoned all hope of achieving an agreement.

A few minutes later the Democratic members, with Speaker Rayburn and Majority Leader McCormack in attendance, met behind closed doors and agreed to sponsor the Doughton bill. Simultaneously, the Republicans held a conclave a few doors down the hall of the new house office building and decided to present the house with two alternatives to the Doughton bill.

Speaker Rayburn, emerging from the Democratic session, expressed "great disappointment" at the failure of the parties concerned to negotiate a compromise. It was Rayburn who originated the movement to achieve harmony after the house several weeks ago had rejected the Ruml plan and sent all other alternative proposals back to the ways and means committee.

Chief stumbling block, not only through the six days of negotiations but throughout the entire three months during which the pay-as-you-go tax issue has been in the foreground, the principal difference has been over the amount of cancellations.

The rejected Ruml plan would have cancelled approximately 93 per cent of the $10,000,000,000 income tax liability for 1942 and various compromise proposals considered from time to time ranged all the way down the cancellation scale to as low as two per cent.

The new Doughton bill would recompute the 1942 liability on the basis of the less severe 1941 rates and exemptions (a cancellation of approximately 41 per cent) and would amortize the unabated balance over a three year period with an offer of a 10 per cent discount to a taxpayer satisfying the unpaid balance by March 15, 1944 or a six per cent discount if satisfied a year later.

The new modified Ruml plan would stiffen the so-called "windfall" provisions to reduce the actual cancellation to about 90 per cent, while the second GOP proposal would abate 75 per cent of the first $5 000 of 1942 income, cancel one-half of all unearned (investment) income above that figure, allow a 75 per cent cancellation for earned (wages, salaries, etc.,) income up to $20,000 and 50 per cent above that figure.

ing us before announcing he was going to investigate the high cost," Commissioner Ray Hout said. "And if the mayor wants to administer relief in the city and county we'll gladly let him take charge, for relief has been a headache for us ever since we took it over."

Administration of the relief office has been in the hands of the county commissioners for about three years, giving them the power to hire and discharge workers. The city and county share the cost of direct relief and administration.

Figures for March showed that the caseload had been reduced sharply during the past year while the administration cost remained about the same The case load for March of this year was 100 involving 216 persons, and for last year 285 cases involving 840 persons. Administration expense was $755 this year and $736 for March of last year.

Asked why the retrenchment had not been announced sooner, Guy Stewart, chairman of the board, said he guessed commissioners had "forgotten" to say anything about it.

Explaining today that the lighter relief load had made the administration expense cut possible, commissioners said they had dropped Miss Dorothy Arnold, food stamp distributor; and Miss Esther Blancett, stenographer-clerk, from the payroll. They left the office last Friday on a two-weeks vacation with pay. The order dismissing them becomes effective May 1.

Only members of the staff left on duty are J. V. Finney, relief director, Miss Pearl Shively and Miss Margaret Austin.

RIVER RISING TO FLOOD LEVEL

Flood Stage Expected At Cincinnati Soon.

CINCINNATI—(INS)—The Ohio river rose steadily today toward a predicted 52-foot flood stage, scheduled for the week end. Meteorologist J. Cecil Alter said the stream would crest slightly above flood stage tomorrow or Saturday. Last night, the stream passed the 45-foot mark.

Upstream at Portsmouth, traffic on U. S. Routes 73 and 52 was blocked as the stream overflowed lowland areas.

However, observers predicted the Ohio would crest below the 52-foot flood stage mark.

heavy rainstorm to get his bearings. After unsuccessfully trying to get the ship out of a steep spiral he yelled to the crew to jump.

Harmon said he saw Wolf, the crew's navigator and Wieting, the co-pilot, take to their parachutes and believes Coss got out too. Coss was the radioman.

"I couldn't see the others," Harmon recounted.

"Just then the ship snapped a left-hand spin. All the instruments went crazy and the altimeter read 1,500 feet—so I got out of there.

"I grabbed for the ripcord, missed, grabbed again and gave it a yank. Next thing I knew I was hanging on a tree. My ship had crashed 20 yards away and was burning. I couldn't get near it until it cooled off. Almost everything was destroyed but I salvaged a pair of pants, shoes, a parachute, jungle kit, Very pistol and cigaret lighter. A Bolo knife was in the jungle kit. I also had a few cans of drinking water.

"I put the trousers on over by flying suit, tied the other things in a bundle and started off due east towards the coast.

"The jungle was terrible—thick undergrowth, no trails, hilly country, every little valley swampy. I had to cut my way through with the Bolo knife, stopping for breath at the top of each hill. It rained and rained.

"I didn't make more than a half a mile before dark.

"I spent the night the best way I could on a high spot. Next day I started out again after eating small chocolate bars. All the drinking water had leaked out of the battered cans during the night and from then on I had to drink water from the swamps."

After four days of this he spent the night in a hut in an island in a large swamp. Next day he waded and swam several miles to another dry ridge where he found two natives who rowed him to a village where an English-speaking official gave him a uniform and sent him with natives in an outrigger canoe which took him to a path leading to a base of the Antilles air task force.

There he boarded an army plane and directed an aerial search which located the wreckage of his plane. Harmon's parachute was still hanging in the tree in which he landed. And three other 'chutes were seen in trees about a mile away. Ground parties left for the crash scene next day.

Army doctors said Harmon was unhurt excepting for numerous scratches, blisters and bruises.

START HOLIDAY

Mansfield Pupils To Begin Short Vacation Today.

More than 6 000 pupils in Mansfield public schools will begin an abbreviated Easter vacation this afternoon which will enable them to complete their term sooner in June.

Instead of the usual week's vacation, the schools will be closed only until next Tuesday morning, permitting the dismissal of classes six days earlier in June than had been scheduled. The spring term will end June 4. It had been set to close June 10.

Earlier dismissal will enable pupils to take summer jobs and help alleviate the serious labor problem Supt. W. L. Miller said.

The St Peter's parochial schools were dismissed this afternoon for a one-week Easter holiday. Pupils will return to classes April 29.

EARNINGS BY PUPILS $1,087

25 at Senior High Receive Average of $43.50 During March.

The 25 pupils in the distributive education classes at Senior high school earned $1,087 after school hours in Mansfield business firms in March, an average of $43.50 per pupil, a report submitted to Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller showed today.

While learning the practical side of business and salesmanship along with their studies, the boys and girls worked in 19 business establishments for a total of 2,859 hours during the month. Their average wage was 38 cents an hour.

The pupil earnings for the month ranged from $66 to $23. The classes are taught by J. C. Stout.

B. Fairfax Letters for Service Men

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 26 years of age and have always had a good deal of freedom and no responsibilities. I love the outdoors, and since I can remember have hiked, skated, ridden a bicycle, played tennis, gone swimming, etc. After graduation I started to business, and loved the busy, interesting days, but always kept up my sports.

I married a wonderful man. And when young Peter, who is now ten months old, came along, we were ecstatic about having a baby. When he was five weeks old we moved into the country, where I didn't know a soul. It doesn't take long to clean up our house, as everything is so nice and new. You would think I ought to be completely happy. I am fully aware of, and grateful for, my blessings, but I'm always so alone.

I play with Peter, sing to him, and am delighted with him. But I long for someone to talk to. I never was the type to spend hours poring over books and magazines; I read a while but it soon bores me. I take Peter out on nice days, but this winter we have been confined to the house so much that it drives me crazy.

My husband thinks I should be completely satisfied, and I am when he comes home. We enjoy being together. It annoyed him to have me say I was restless, so I don't complain any more. I'm often ashamed of this desire to get out for a brisk walk, or a few hours shopping, or a friendly girlish conversation. Am I awful to feel this way?

Peter's Mother.

Looking back on my own days of young motherhood, I recall it was easier to manage a baby of ten months than one in the crawling stage when everything not nailed down goes into his mouth.

Isn't there some trustworthy person, possibly a high school girl, you can have come in by the hour to watch over Peter while you go bicycling, window-shopping, or drop in on a friend for tea, or have your hair done? (Nothing like a visit to a beauty parlor to refresh inwardly as well as outwardly.)

You do need some one besides your husband to talk to. No doubt there are other young mothers around you yearning as you are for a friendly conversation. You will be able to meet them through your church, to which you can go alone while your husband minds the baby; and through civilian defense work which you will be able to do if you arrange for Peter to be cared for a couple of hours a day two or three days a week.

Your husband should not question your desire to "do your part" or to keep up with your religious practises.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband is too fond of other women, and doesn't want me to go out anywhere. The last time we went out together was Thanksgiving day. My husband goes out three times a week and has good times, but when I ask him to take me he says that women belong at home, while men have a right to go out every night in the week. He also drinks too much.

We've been married seven years and have one child. My husband is 34 and I am 31. What can I do to make myself more attractive to my husband? Is there anything else you can suggest?

F. V.

This husband of yours seems to be a genuine antique, as far as ideas about women are concerned. Do these women he goes out with share his notions that woman's place is home? One way to make yourself attractive to "a museum piece" type of husband, such as you describe, is to cultivate a little more independence of character.

Tomorrow's Problem.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, April 23.

Although there may be some auspicious phases to business endeavors, judging by conflicting planetary aspects, there may be need of sagacious and calculated efforts to effect a disruptive influence which may find reactions in the business as well as private affairs. The best way to circumvent this stalemate may be by the employment of new and constructive ways for breaking up static or baleful conditions. There may be public or community approbation and substantial support for ingenuity. Similar tactics might avert calamity in purely private associations.

Those whose birthday it is may have to employ much originality, ideas, plans and methods in order to turn aside certain obstacles.

Send eleven cents in coins for this pattern to Mansfield News-Journal, Needlecraft department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N.Y. Write plainly pattern number, your name and address. Delivery of patterns may take longer than usual because of the heavy volume of mail.

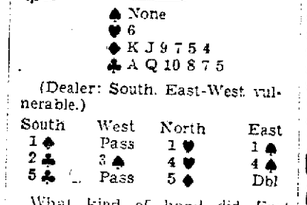
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE ORDER OF EVENTS

Success or failure of a large proportion of all contracts depends not so much upon what moves are made as upon when. Changing the order of events ever so slightly can alter the entire situation. Probably the hardest factor of all to master in bridge is the element of timing, which is frequently a very delicate proposition. Set rules can not be laid down except in a general way. Their application depends on study of the several elements involved to figure out just how to fit them together.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♥	1 ♠
2 ♣	3 ♠	4 ♥	4 ♠
5 ♣	Pass	5 ♦	Dbl

What kind of hand did East have for his double? That was the question confronting South, a deep-thinking declarer, when the spade lead rode around to him. He decided to seek to build up some heart tricks for discards, since the clubs might be badly hunched, and so would use the dummy's trumps as ruffing entries instead of trying finesses toward either of his own suits.

So, after ruffing the first trick, he laid down the club A, and was both gratified and shocked by the falling of the singleton K. Instead of leading a club then for an immediate ruff, he went after the hearts at once, sending the 10 to East's Q. The latter returned a spade to be ruffed by the diamond 5, then the club 5 was led, West ruffing with the 8 to force the A. The heart K, covered by the A, was ruffed by the diamond 7 and the club 7 led. West using his diamond 10, too high for the dummy to over-ruff. Another spade was led, the dummy ruffing with the diamond 2 and South trashing a club.

Now came good hearts from dummy East not wanting his diamond honor caught, discarded and South threw off clubs for two successive tricks. This left South only his best three trumps. Thereupon he led the diamond 6 from dummy and East's guarded Q was trapped. It was pretty play.

Soybeans as A Main Dish In Day's Menu

By BETSY NEWMAN

Did you ever substitute soybeans for the ordinary baked beans? They are very good, and may be soaked overnight, cooked until partly tender, then baked with seasonings and salt pork like navy or pea beans. A soybean casserole is good too. Served with a green salad, maybe a green or yellow vegetable and a sweet they make a very good and substantial meal.

Today's Menu.

Baked Soybeans or Soybean Casserole
Baked Buttered Squash
Mixed Green Salad
Lemon Chiffon Pie with Graham Cracker Crust
Tea or Coffee

Soybean Casserole.

2 cups cooked soybeans, chopped
¼ cup diced salt pork
2 cups chopped celery
6 Tbsps. flour
2 Tbsps chopped onions
2 Tbsps. chopped green peppers
2 cups milk
1 tsp. salt
1 cup buttered bread crumbs

Brown salt pork in frying pan, add celery, onion, and green pepper, and saute for about 5 minutes. Add thickening made from flour, milk and salt, and stir until it reaches the boiling point. Stir in cooked beans and crumbs. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 30 minutes or until crumbs on top are brown.

Lemon Chiffon Pie With Graham Cracker Crust.

18 graham crackers, rolled fine
¼ cup butter or margarine

Roll crackers fine and mix very thoroughly with softened butter or margarine. When well blended line bottom and sides of pie pan.

Lemon Chiffon Pie.

1 Tbsp. plain, unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
1 cup boiling water
1 cup sugar
½ cup lemon juice
¼ tsp. salt
2 egg yolks
2 egg whites

Soak gelatin in cold water for about 5 minutes, dissolve in boiling water, add lemon juice. Beat egg yolks until thick, add one-half sugar and slowly add gelatin mixture. Pour into top of double boiler and add rest of sugar. Cook, stirring constantly until mixture is blended and begins to thicken; cool. Whip until stiff enough to hold its shape and pour into cracker shell. Cover with egg whites which have been beaten stiff with 2 tablespoons sugar, and brown in 325 degree oven.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

At this characteristically feminine outburst, but so unlike Katharine, I looked steadily at her and rejoiced that she had the grace to drop her eyes.

"I had no business to say that," she said remorsefully, "I'm sorry."

"You ought to be," I said severely. "Jack has shown me pretty clearly what he thinks of wilderness women, and you know he wouldn't give a second thought to any danger Ruth Hayes might incur should she discover his whereabouts.

"But you are distinctly different, Jack will do anything, risk anything, to keep danger from you. And yet, I am certain that he would give anything in the world to have you by his side in this, his most dangerous hour."

"Oh, Madge!" she implored, stretching her hands out to me in an eloquent, pleading gesture. "Can't you manage that for me? If I could only be with him, to share his danger and anxiety, that is all I ask."

Doubts Dispelled.

My last doubt of her real feeling for her husband now fled. Whatever romantic appeal Hal Meredith had held for her in the days of Jack's long and inexplicable neglect had gone as soon as she learned of Jack's danger, and knew his long silence was explained by the treachery of Ruth Hayes in suppressing their letters to each other. And to cap everything else was the assurance Jack had given me of his unalterable love for Katharine.

In my thoughts I wafted a goodbye to that patient and chivalrous lover, Hal Meredith, then came back to Katharine. With her appeal echoing in my ears, I rose with sudden resolution.

"I'm going to do something drastic," I said, "but I want your promise first to lie down on that bed of mine, draw the afghan over you and remain perfectly quiet until I return. You may read, if you wish, I'm not going to answer any questions now, and I'll be back as soon as I can."

From my closet I took hat, coat, scarf, gloves and purse, then stooped and kissed her, already lying on the bed.

"If Father comes through, pretend to be asleep," I said. "If the doorbell rings, deal with the call as you think best. I'll be back within an hour."

I knocked at the camouflaged door, then went through it as my father threw it open. I had put on my hat, and he looked at me with elevated eyebrows.

"I may have to take this off again," I said, "but I am preparing for an errand I hope I will be permitted to perform."

"Yes?" he said non-committally.

"Father," I said, "Katharine's keen mental suffering, and my realization that if I were in her place I would be as nearly crazed as she is, compels me to put a question to you."

The eyebrows came down, and into his eyes crept an expression which gave me sudden hope.

Makes No Promise.

"I will hear your question," he said, "but I do not promise to answer it."

"Is the determination to keep Katharine from seeing Jack his decision only," I asked quickly, "based on his fear for her, or have you some reason of your own for keeping them apart?"

He gave me a steady look as he countered with another question.

"Suppose I told you I had a good reason for keeping Katharine away from Jack?"

"I trust I am a good soldier," I said. "In that case, I shall take off my hat and go back to my apartment."

SCHEDULE FOR UNION SERVICE AT SHELBY SET

'Seven Words of the Cross' To Be Theme For Good Friday Worship.

SHELBY — "Seven Words of the Cross" will be the theme for union Good Friday services to be held from noon to 3 p. m. at the First Methodist church under the sponsorship by the Shelby Ministerial association.

Seven pastors will take part in the program. Because of his retirement, Dr. A. B. Allison former pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will not preach at the service. His place will be taken by Rev. George C. Beebe, pastor of the host church. The service will be divided into seven periods of approximately 25 minutes.

Rev. Carl A. Grimm, pastor of Evangelical and Reformed church, will preach on "Intercession" during the opening period starting at noon and lasting until 12:25 p. m. The second period will be in charge of Rev. J. C. Searle, pastor of the United Brethren church. The topic will be "Authority." This period ends at 12:50. Music will be furnished by the Men's chorus of the church.

The third period will have Rev. W. L. Peters, pastor of First Baptist church, bring the message on the word "Remembrance." It ends at 1:15 p. m. Dr. D. Bruce Young, pastor of First Lutheran church, will preach the fourth word of "Loneliness." His period ends at 1:40 p. m.

The fifth word, "Suffering," will be brought by Rev. Beebe. The chancel choir will sing a special number. The period ends at 2:05 p. m.

The sixth period, ending at 2:30 p. m., will bring Rev. Roy Klinger of First Church of Nazarene to the pulpit to preach on the word "Victory." The final period closing the services at 3 p. m. will be in charge of Rev. R. T. Crowe of the First Church of Christ. A quartet consisting of the Misses Joanne Gilmore, Joan Kirkpatrick, Jean Petty and Beverly Samsel will sing a special musical selection. The word to be preached on his "Refuge."

GROUP SELECTS NEW OFFICERS

CRESTLINE — Nomination of officers was held and the initiatory degree conferred on the candidates at a meeting of the Eagles auxiliary Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Edgar Poole, the president, was in charge of the meeting. A spaghetti supper was served at the close of the meeting with Mrs. Lena Baker chairman of the committee.

Election of officers will be held at the next meeting, May 3.

CUBBERS MEET

SHELBY — Cubbers from the Johnny Appleseed area were present for the meeting Wednesday night at the First Lutheran church here.

W. R. Parnell, Shelby District Boy Scout council chairman and area Cubbing official, conducted the meeting. Representatives were present from Cub Packs in Mansfield, Galion, Crestline, Ashland, and Plymouth.

NAME OFFICERS

LOUDONVILLE—A meeting of the Mothers' club was held recently at the home of Mrs. Connie Casner.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Alice Bernhard; vice president, Mrs. Alvia Hilderband; secretary, Mrs. Mozelle Fulmer; correspondent secretary, Mrs. Bee Sellner; treasurer, Mrs. Vera Saunier.

ZONES FIXED

BUCYRUS — Zoning of Ohio liquor districts will place all of Crawford county with the exception of Polk, Jackson and Jefferson in the Bucyrus store area, Loren Culver, manager of the store, announced today.

The three above mentioned townships will be served through the Galion store which will also serve Troy, Congress, North Bloomfield and Perry townships in Morrow county. Crestline purchasers will be required to make all purchases at the Galion store after rationing begins.

CONDUCT SMALL ARMS SCHOOL

Galion Rifle and Pistol Club To Hold 6-Week Course For Group.

GALION—Approved by the war department, a small arms training school sponsored by the National Rifle association and the Galion Rifle and Pistol club, will be opened on the club's rifle range in City hall.

Classes will be held every Thursday night until the basic course of six weeks is completed. At the conclusion of this course, pupils will have become sufficiently indoctrinated in the fundamentals of rifle marksmanship as taught by the army, navy and marine corps to pass smoothly into the more advanced training in service, or even be called upon to act as coaches for untrained men.

There is already an enrollment of 15 Galion citizens, all of them members of the Civil Air Patrol and Galion Auxiliary Police.

Two civilian training schools have been given by the Galion Rifle club and many of those instructed are now in the armed forces.

The staff of instructors includes: C. B. Hess, Cleo Pfleiderer, W. R. Rhinehart, Clarence Tuller, John MacAdam, Floyd Sieffee, C. D. Lauer and Lloyd Bender.

BUCYRIAN FACES LARCENY CHARGE

BUCYRUS—Joseph C. Nemedy, 39, machine operator at the Crawford Steel foundry, who was arrested Tuesday and charged with two counts of grand larceny, will be given a preliminary hearing before Mayor William F. Whiteamire today. He is charged with taking a microscope valued at $150 from his place of employment and with the theft of a target pistol, hunting knife and camera from the home of his landlord, Clarence Cotsamire. All of the stolen articles were recovered by officers from the police and sheriff's departments.

Nemedy has a police record, having served 18 months in Leavenworth prison for violation of the national motor vehicle act upon sentence pronounced at East St. Louis in 1938. He was taken there from Mansfield where he was arrested and turned over to the FBI.

FARMER SUES FOR DAMAGES

ASHLAND—Ernest E. Schweyer of near Jeromesville feels that the salvage drive was somewhat overdone when it reached his farm. Schweyer has brought suit in common pleas court against H. H. Geiger, superintendent of Jeromesville schools, and David Colville, Jeromesville agricultural teacher, asking $400 damages for property which he says was carried from his farm during a salvage drive.

In his petition, Schweyer charges that the school men took a 200-gallon sprayer chassis, a 200-gallon wood spray tank and agitator, a spray pump and a Ford motor used on the sprayer and also gears and a roller chain.

QUOTA FILLED

BUCYRUS — Instruction cards went out today to 280 volunteer blood donors who will give a pint of blood when the Red Cross mobile blood bank unit comes to Bucyrus next week.

Cards of regret were also sent to all applicants under 21 and to those who registered after the quota was filled. The latter will be given an opportunity to register in June when the traveling unit will return. The unit will be set up in First Presbyterian church.

SERVICES SET

ASHLAND — Because there is no Episcopal church in Ashland, special Easter services for Ashland Episcopalians will be held Sunday at 4 p. m. at the First Presbyterian church with Rev. Glenn F. Lewis, rector of Grace Episcopal church of Mansfield conducting the service.

The male choir of the Grace church will furnish music under the direction of Miss Louise Krause, Grace church organist.

CONFIRM DEATH

BUCYRUS—Confirmation came Tuesday from the U. S. war department of the death in service of Ensign Harold Auck, who was killed in a plane crash in the Pearl Harbor area, March 30. Details have not been received.

Parents of Ensign Auck received word of his death a week ago and the message this week was a confirmation of the earlier information.

City Collects 14 Tons of Tin Cans at Ashland

ASHLAND—Ashland's first tin can collection netted 14 tons, Mayor Glenn B. Haller and city salvage chairman Richard Oblinger announced today after a check-up of the collection by city trucks Tuesday.

Fifty Boy Scouts aided the city employes in making a canvass of the entire city.

The tin, stored in a building at the waterworks plant, will be sent to a detinning plant as soon as collection in the county is complete.

Another tin can collection will be made in the near future, Mayor Haller announced.

SERVICES SET

Trophies Brought Back From Pacific War

Sgt. Jacob Eichof, left, and Staff Sgt. Robert R Champion, above, look over a Japanese 25-caliber rifle that Champion brought back from the Pacific war zone last week when he returned on furlough. It was taken from a dead Nip warior on Guadalcanal along with the bayonet and clip of 25-caliber shells held by Sgt Eichof, and some photographs of Japanese soldiers The trophies are believed to be the first to reach Mansfield from the Pacific war zone

MANSFIELDER PRIZES JAP GUN, PHOTOGRAPHS TAKEN FROM NIPS

What are believed to be the first trophies of the war in the Pacific to reach Mansfield were brought back last week by one of nine Mansfield district soldiers who returned from the war zone on furlough.

The souvenirs include a Japanese 25-caliber rifle and bayonet, a clip of 25-caliber shells and several photographs of Japanese soldiers, probably his friends, taken from the body of a dead Nip on Guadalcanal

One of the photographs shows one of the Japs attired in the traditional prayer belt which, Champion said, is a cloth wrap-around and stitched by 1,000 of the soldier's friends. It is expected to protect the Nipponese soldier during battle with the enemy.

The rifle although a small bore has a simple mechanism and probably weighs little more than the U. S army Springfield The bayonet is a two-edge affair

Although he missed action himself, Staff Sergt Robert R. Champion, stationed on one of the islands in the southwest Pacific, obtained the trophies from other U. S soldiers who had returned from the thick of the fighting

Sgt Champion, a former member of Battery D, Ohio National guard, has been in the battle zone for the past 10 months.

Other Mansfielders who returned with Champion include Jacob Eichof, Severn Skulski, Leslie Snyder, Howard Perathoner, Ross Laufman Paul Rein, and Morrison Boyle

The men will leave Mansfield Monday for Camp Hood, Cal, where they expect to undergo additional training.

Proper Planting of Beets In Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Ass'n.)

Beet seeds may be planted outside just as soon as it is possible to prepare the soil Light frosts will not injure either the seeds or young plants

Beet seeds should be sown thinly since one kernel will send up several sprouts, sometimes as many as six.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, plant beet seeds one inch apart along the row and one inch deep The distance apart the rows are placed will depend upon the size of the Victory garden and the type of wheel cultivator used, if any other than the good old hoe The rows may vary from 14 to 24 inches apart

The thinning of young beet plants should begin early. Do not wait until the plants have become injured by overcrowding. Thin the plants to four inches apart in the row, as illustrated. The thinned out plants can be replanted in some other part of the garden or they can be used as table greens If the thinned out plants are transplanted they will mature about 10 days later than the rows from which they were taken

Successive plantings of beets should be made all summer and any surplus of the early beet plantings can be canned for winter use. Ample amounts of the late varieties of beets should be planted with the intention of storing the harvested roots for winter use

COPS 'MOTHER' SERVICE MEN

Brockton Police Conduct a Week-End 'Hotel' For Soldiers, Sailors.

BROCKTON, Mass — (INS) — Brockton police play host every week-end to soldiers and sailors who become stranded between their respective camps and homes As many as 35 are housed free of charge.

Inspector Harry F Kearns, in charge of the night shift, runs the headquarters like a real hotel and has been dubbed "hotel manager" by brother officers.

Service men seeking accommodations for the night register at the regular booking desk.

When a "guest" is properly identified, he is given a blanket, pillow, towel and soap and is assigned to a cot in the upper guardroom.

Once he is settled, the soldier or sailor can make himself at home in the station house Magazines books and a radio have been provided.

The Brockton service men's center cooperates with the police by serving breakfast to the boys about 7 30 each morning

The police have dealt sternly with local drunks who have tried to invade the "hotel." These men have been hustled downstairs where they sleep in cold and uncomfortable cells

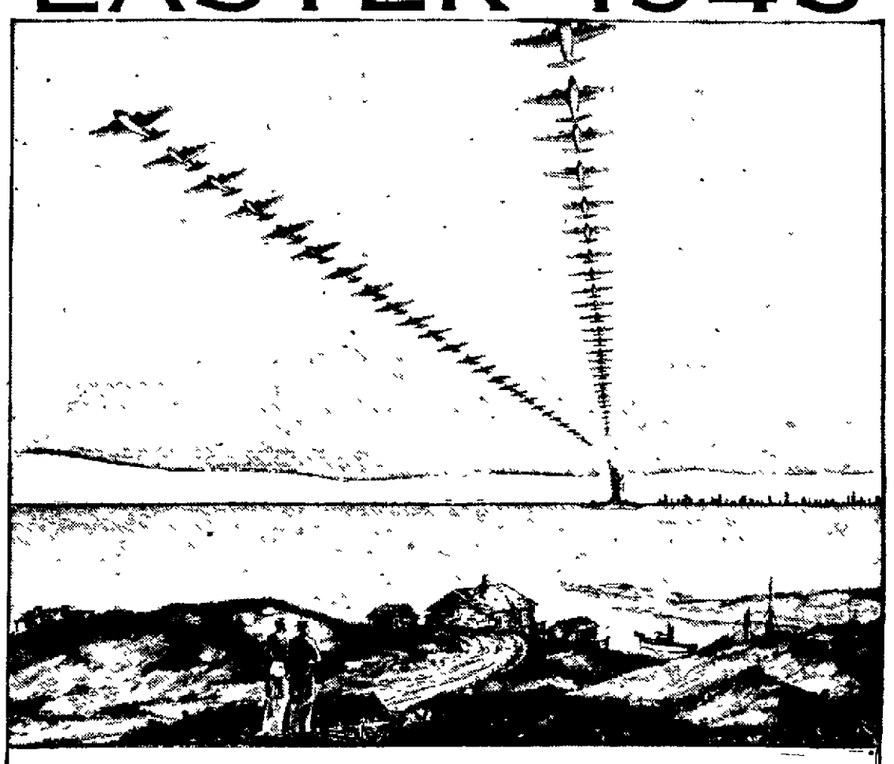
EASTER 1943



AS EASTER DAWNS through the clearing war clouds, it heralds a brighter spring, full of fresh hope and faith!

Last year, the happy custom of serving a KINGAN Reliable Ham for Easter was observed in tens of thousands of homes. This year, even if you have conserved your meat ration points, you will be fortunate if you can buy a KINGAN Ham — for war needs come first. KINGAN AND COMPANY daily are supplying huge quantities of meat to our Armed Forces at home and abroad, and this Easter the ham you might have had will be enjoyed by those who fight for us!

KINGAN AND COMPANY believe that if you are deprived of an Easter Ham this year, you will be comforted by knowing that this and the other things you must do without, are helping to bring the day of ultimate Victory nearer and nearer!

IT AIN'T A BED —IT'S A RIFLE!

Yesterday it was a bed in a Mansfield attic, but today? Boy! Today it's a slick, hard shootin' rifle!

Here's how it happened. A thrifty, patriotic Mansfielder got me to sell it and buy her a War Bond. My ol' Uncle invested the cash in a rifle, and there you are!

Now if you'll dig around the house, you'll find at least 5 salable things you don't need. Turn 'em over to me and I'll sell 'em!

I'm a News-Journal Want Ad. I send all kinds of discarded things to war every day, as this nursery chair and baby bed which I sold recently.

CHOIRS PROVIDE SPECIAL MUSIC

Public Holy Hour Highlights Holy Thursday Services at St. Peter's.

As Holy Week services continued at St. Peter's Catholic church, the congregation today observed Holy Thursday with special music and worship.

Mass was sung by senior and junior boys and a public Holy Hour to commemorate the institution of the Blessed Sacrament is scheduled from 3 to 4 p. m. The hour will consist of public prayer and singing. The choir for this service will be made up of high school girls.

The mass of the pre-sanctified will take place at noon tomorrow. During the adoration of the cross service, the choir will sing special numbers.

On Holy Saturday, senior boys vested in cassock and surplice will sing the prophecies, and the freshman boys' choir will sing the mass and Holy Saturday vespers.

On Easter Sunday, solemn high mass will be celebrated by Msgr. R. C. Goebel assisted by priests of the parish. A 70-voice choir, made up of senior and junior high school boys and 30 choristers from the grade school, will sing. Sophomore boys will sing the proper of the mass in the sanctuary.

Earlier in the week the church held special Palm Sunday services.

"Tenebrae" was sung by junior boys last night. It will be sung by sophomore boys tonight and by senior boys on Friday evening. Senior boys will sing a four-voiced "Miserere" and the benediction tonight and tomorrow night.

MEET IN CAMP

CAMP ROBERTS, Cal.—(U.P.)—Russell C. Puchta, 19, and his father, Leslie E. Puchta, were both inducted into the selective service at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., Sept. 12, 1942. There they said goodby and lost track of each other until Russell was assigned to the Field Artillery Replacement Training Service here, where he found his father as Technician 5th Grade.

In the back row are Casimer Buzenski, Richard Lehman, Raymond Bush and John Besch.

SPURN 'DOGS'

SAN FRANCISCO — (U.P.) — Starving Japanese prisoners taken on board a U. S. ship at Guadalcanal at first absolutely refused to touch the "hot dogs" laid before them, according to Coast Guardsman Frederick L. Littman, just returned from there.

However, when they discovered that the marines and coast guardsmen were not only not afraid of the "dogs" but actually ate them without being stricken to death by poisoning, the "dogs" almost yelped as they scuttled down the throats of the famished Japs.

Clinics Listed For Pre-School Children In City

Mansfield's approximately 420 pre-school children will receive physical examinations at grade school buildings during a 10-day period beginning May 17, Supt. W. L. Miller said today.

The examinations will be conducted under the supervision of Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, and they will begin at the Bowman school. The schedule follows:

May 17 and 18, Bowman school; May 19, Hedges school; May 20, Prospect and Woodland schools; May 21, Western avenue and Brinkerhoff schools.

May 24, Newman and Bushnell schools; May 25, Carpenter and West Fifth schools; May 26, St. Peter's parochial school, and May 27, clean-up check of those who were missed the first time around.

FEARLESS LASS

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—(U.P.)—Miss Lucille Clayton, 19-year-old Texan, boasts of an absolute fearlessness in regard to animals. She lifted a protecting screen in a downtown show and began caressing Leo, a 200-pound, seven-month-old African lion.

Leo liked the prettiness of Miss Clayton's arm and to show his appreciation began chewing it. The owner of Leo thrust his arm into the cage and choked the lion till he quit chewing. "I still think he was cute," said Miss Clayton as a surgeon dressed her multiple wounds on both arms, "and I think he enjoyed being petted."

STOCK MARKET STILL TAKING UPWARD TRAIL

Bank Clearings In 23 Cities Reach 10 Billion Dollar Level In Past Week.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Advancing tendencies continued in today's early stock market proceedings.

Up fractions to a point at a moderately active opening were General Electric, U. S. Steel, Best Foods, Western Union, Chrysler, Goodrich, United Aircraft and U. S. Rubber.

Analysts noted the bank clearings survey of Dun & Bradstreet which disclosed that these transactions in the week ended Wednesday nearly reached the 10 billion dollar level in 23 cities and topped the comparable period last year by 44.8 per cent. The war loan drive, heavy pre-Easter sales and sustained industrial activity received principal credit for the expansion.

CHICAGO — (AP) — A modest amount of buying attributed to milling interests advanced wheat minor fractions at the opening today and other grains followed the bread cereal.

Wheat opened ⅛ to ⅜ higher, May $1.44¾-⅞; and corn was unchanged at ceilings. May $1.05.

INFANT DIES

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Solomon Succumbs In Cleveland.

LOUDONVILLE — Mrs. Margaret Solomon received word last night of the death of her one-day-old granddaughter, Mary Solomon, at 4 p. m. yesterday at St. John's hospital in Cleveland.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Vincent Solomon, 12592 Clifton boulevard, Lakewood. Her father, a first class pharmacist's mate in the United States navy, is on duty somewhere in the Pacific, and efforts are being made to notify him of the child's death through the Red Cross.

Her other grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Fournier of Lakewood also survive. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

have been at any time since they have been built, Sword said. Rain has slowed repairs since the patching material will not adhere in damp weather. Only temporary repairs have been made on them to date.

Pending payment of the county share in the state automobile license money, Sword said he was uncertain how much money would be available for highway use. On hand now, he said, was only enough to pay for the contract work on gravel roads with a little to spare.

"License proceeds will be less this year, since only about 75 per cent as many truck tags were sold in comparison to last year, and three per cent fewer passenger licenses," Sword reviewed from state license statistics.

"Last year, the license money came in on April 12, but this year, owing to the extension of the license purchase time, it has been delayed," he concluded.

County commissioners will hold a final hearing Monday evening on the proposed relocation of Trimble road along the Pennsylvania tracks northwest of Mansfield's city limits to eliminate the hazardous crossing over the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio tracks known as "Dead Man's Crossing."

CASUALTIES ARE 'TERRIFIC'

Legion Commander Reports on North African Losses, Cites Hard Blows.

ican people must realize this. This thing has just started.

"When we get through, we then face the big battle of Europe and Tunisia is bound to be a jumping off place. I don't say that it will be the actual jumping off place for the invasion of Europe. It's just an incident preparing for the jumping off."

Waring spent seven weeks, and traveled 25,000 miles, inspecting army camps in the United States and then went to the North African battlegrounds.

He said that he was tremendously impressed by the training given soldiers in this country.

"Over there," (Africa) he continued, "I was impressed first by the tremendous distances over which we have to operate. I never had any idea of the size. It is not only the job of getting supplies through the submarine-infested ocean but of moving them up to the front.

"It is as far from the west coast of Africa to the front as it is from Denver to New York—1,400 miles. And they haven't got the railroads we have in this country. But the army is doing a pretty good job at it."

Waring related that American army engineers, using improvised equipment, have set up regular production lines at west African ports. He said that planes and tanks, which arrive unassembled to save shipping space, are put together on the lines and come out completely prepared for battle even to gasoline and oil supplies. He saw one derrick which army engineers had built out of old railroad rails.

CHEST CLINIC OPENS TUESDAY

Senior High Juniors To Be Examined For Tuberculosis.

A chest clinic for the 240 members of the Junior class at Senior high school will be conducted on Tuesday at the school, Mrs. Margaret Adams, executive secretary of the Richland County Tuberculosis association, said today.

The diagnostic tests which reveal lung and heart ailments will conclude the examination of pupils in the city and county public schools, leaving only St. Peter's pupils to check, Mrs. Adams said.

The clinic will open at 9 a. m., and Mrs. Adams urged all members of the class to be present for the x-ray test.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Two Arrested — Two motorists were arrested yesterday in the Mansfield area, state patrolmen reported. John Spellman, Ashland, was cited to appear in Ashland police court today at 2 p. m. to answer charges of allowing his 13-year-old son to drive on U. S. Route 42 last night. Leroy E. Walcutt, Greentown, signed a waiver and posted $16.30 in Mansfield municipal court on charges of speeding on U. S. Route 42, patrolmen reported.

Meets Today — Members of the Mansfield Public Parks association will meet today at 7:30 p. m. at Boy Scout headquarters to discuss plans for the recreation programs in the parks this summer. Harry Bowman, association president, will be in charge.

Attends Meeting—Glenn G. Rohleder, principal at Mansfield Senior high school, will attend the annual Ohio High School Principals association meeting in Columbus Friday and Saturday.

Hear Pastor—Rev. Charles F. Sheriff, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran church, gave an Easter talk to Senior high school pupils this morning on the school's radio. An Easter assembly will be held in the school auditorium this afternoon.

Postponed—Western school Arbor day program, which was to be held Wednesday, was postponed one week to April 28, Principal J. M. Clark announced today. Highlight of the program will be the planting of a tree in Middle park.

Equipment Stolen — George T. Charlton told police last night that photographic equipment valued at $56 had been stolen from his studio in the Bird building since last Friday. The loot included flash bulbs and luminous tubes.

Attacked By Dog—James Wolf, 213 Abbeyfeale road, a news boy, was attacked by a dog as he was delivering papers last night at 258 Saxon road and suffered an injury to his left leg, he told police. W. F. Rathburn, of the Saxon road address, owner of the dog, was ordered to keep the animal confined.

Prosecute Juveniles—Two Ashland, Ky., boys who were taken into custody yesterday in Chillicothe in the theft of a car owned by Victor Nickelvich, 17 West Arch street, will be prosecuted in their home city, Ralph Carroll, county juvenile officer, had been informed today. The car was recovered in Chillicothe and authorities here expected to return the youths here for hearings.

can safely forego immediate production for future perfection. We need another 'soap box on a raft' like the Monitor.

"More encouragement should be given to inventors who have concepts that may prove to be valuable. An example is the helicopter, which might make a substantial contribution as it can be enlarged sufficiently to carry heavy loads of depth charges and improved so as to land on ship decks with greater facility."

Concerning submarine warfare, the report said:

"Ship losses by submarine action have been heavy, but they have not been disastrous. German propaganda announcements that these sinkings are winning the war for Germany are not true. However, our own 'hush, hush' policy has given credence to such propaganda. Certainly is always better than rumor.

"Frankness is the best answer to propaganda. The submarine losses in 1942 have been widely circulated and must be known to the German government.

"They averaged approximately 1,000,000 tons of shipping per month and in the aggregate exceeded the new construction built by the United States and Great Britain. However, the losses were lower during the last months of the year."

WIDOW, 73, DIES

Mrs. Mary Wheeler Taken By Death at Willard.

WILLARD — Mrs. Mary Wheeler, 73, widow of J. E. Wheeler, former Willard merchant, died last night at Municipal hospital here after a lingering illness.

She was the daughter of the late Rev. W. A. Keesy who organized the United Brethren church here 67 years ago.

Mrs. Wheeler is survived by one son, Raymond, of Willard, a granddaughter, Mary Louise, student nurse at University hospital, Cleveland, a brother, Robert Keesy of Tiffin, and five sisters, Mrs. Ethel Smith, Mrs. Ola Smith and Mrs. Helen Weller of Tiffin, Mrs. Minnie McKee of Baltimore, Md., and Mrs. Vesta Byrer of Willard.

The body was removed to the Fink funeral home where funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 2:30 p. m. by Rev. Paul W. Sharp. Burial will be in Greenlawn cemetery.

PROTECT YOUR CAR

AGAINST RUST AND CORROSION

Summer driving, with plain water in your radiator, will tend to build up rust and corrosion in the cooling system of your car.

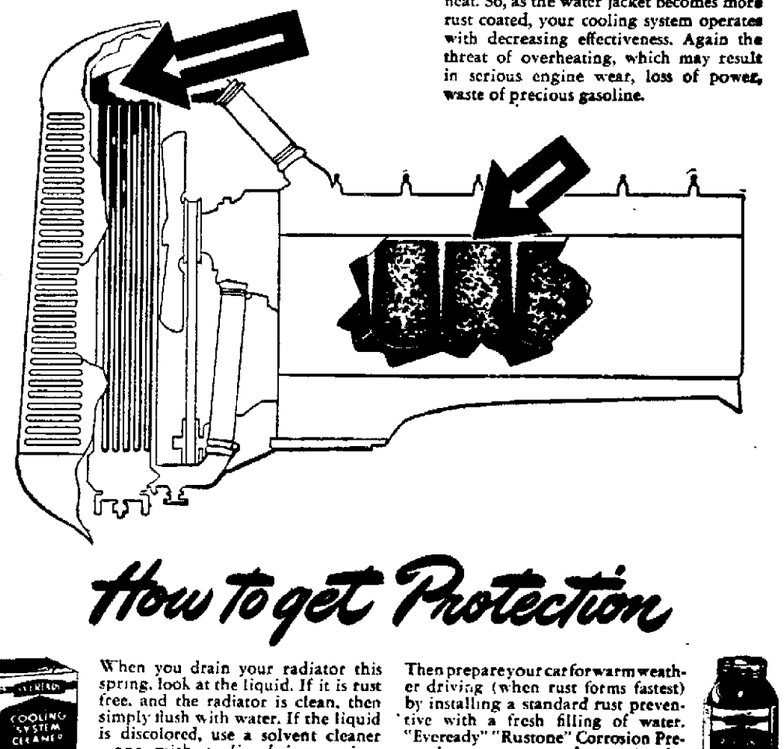
THESE ARE DANGER POINTS!

1 THE RADIATOR

Rust tends to deposit itself here, and filter down between the water tubes. Result: your radiator loses efficiency in throwing off engine heat. And an overheated engine is liable to serious damage.

2 THE COOLING JACKET

Most rust is formed on the iron walls of the engine water jacket. Rust holds in heat. So, as the water jacket becomes more rust coated, your cooling system operates with decreasing effectiveness. Again the threat of overheating, which may result in serious engine wear, loss of power, waste of precious gasoline.



How to get Protection

When you drain your radiator this spring, look at the liquid. If it is rust free, and the radiator is clean, then simply flush with water. If the liquid is discolored, use a solvent cleaner—one with a dissolving action. "Eveready" Cooling System Cleaner is an example. Your dealer should have it; directions are on the package.

Then prepare your car for warm weather driving (when rust forms fastest) by installing a standard rust preventive with a fresh filling of water. "Eveready" "Rustone" Corrosion Preventive stops rust and corrosion by chemically treating the water and depositing a thin protective coat on all metals. Your dealer probably has it.

The preventive service outlined above follows the policy recommended by the Office of Defense Transportation.

"Eveready" Cooling System Cleaner and "Eveready" "Rustone" Corrosion Preventive are made by the makers of

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—I am afraid that in my zeal to exterminate the vermin in the house of labor I have carelessly neglected to affirm as often as I should have that these dispatches are pro-labor and pro-union. The two are not synonymous and I am pro-labor primarily and always and in favor of good unions but against criminal and seditious unionism.

Strictly speaking, it should not be necessary to say this. My disclosures should speak for themselves. Every individual who has been exposed in this campaign has been shown to be an enemy of labor and of unionism. They include not only the wormy underworld criminals of the union mobs and the traitors of the Communist wing of the CIO, but such pretentious demagogues as John L. Lewis, William Green and Joseph Padway, the general counsel of the AFL who, by his great effrontery, has been able to put himself over as a spokesman of labor when he has been nothing but a high-priced, hustling lawyer.

Pegler

All together, these enemies of labor have at their command a tremendous power of propaganda with which to smear anyone who challenges them. They are fighting for their incomes and their power and it has put them in a terrible fear and rage to be exposed as oppressors and exploiters of the American worker after many years of pleasant importance, especially in Washington, where congress accepted their false reputations as labor leaders without discount or question.

The unioneers have hundreds of publications in which to praise themselves as Hitler idolizes Hitler in his Beobachter and they have stooges planted in congress and the legislatures and state and city governments to eulogize them and do their dirty work. They use the workers' own money to publish papers telling the same workers what fine men they are and what a low character anyone must be who utters the truth against them.

It should make no difference whether I am for or against labor and unionism.

The facts, the truth, alone should count, but I realize that the unioneers put me at a disadvantage when they constantly avow their love of labor and their devotion to unionism while I shrink from such self-importance and demagoguery. The label "friend of the working man" has been exploited for financial and political profit by some of the most contemptible rogues in American history and I have thought that my work in the field of this reform would say more convincingly than any protestation whether these dispatches are for or against the interests of the workers and the unions.

One thing that has worried the boss unioneers more than any other over the six years of this campaign has been the thoroughness of my work. Not one single charge against any criminal or Communist has been refuted, although hundreds of individuals have been named with no such timid qualifications as "allegedly" or "reputedly."

Five years ago I told Green that I would name a hundred crooks in his AFL and by now the number far exceeds that promise. The CIO office workers' union, one of the groups dominated by the Communist influence, challenged me to prove that any member of that union had been guilty of treachery to an employer by betraying confidential information.

Within six weeks I showed that a spy belonging to this union and employed in the office of District 50 of the United Mine Workers in New York had helped to arrange a lawless raid on District 50 by a gang of thugs from the transport workers, another party line organization, in which agents of Marshall Field, the millionaire New Dealer, participated. The proof was so sure that the office workers' union instantly dropped a letter-writing campaign and forgot the matter entirely. Field, too, was silent.

What are my beliefs on labor and unionism, then?

Simply that labor needs collective bargaining power in order to deal on equal terms with employers. That is the essence of honest unionism.

But the workers have the right to select their own bargaining agents or remain free agents if they prefer. The political labor policy of the New Deal denies the free choice of bargaining agents to hundreds of thousands of workers and delivers them, en masse, to tyrants, murderers, thieves and Communists. Also for the protection of the workers all union officials must be made accountable under law for union funds, campaign contributions out of union treasuries must be outlawed and all men with criminal records or Communist affiliations must be barred from union office. Furthermore, I would insist that no strike could be called without a majority vote of the whole membership of the union and I would punish assault or vandalism by a picket the same as any other assault or act of vandalism.

All these proposals are pro-labor and pro-union. If organized labor does not adopt them, as well as some others, unionism will be destroyed and the culprits will be those boss unioneers who have encouraged and practiced atrocities against the whole American community, including the workers. These are the enemies of labor and unionism in the United States.

CATLETT BACKS MOVE TO REVIVE GAMBLING BILL

Wins Support For New Vote on Measure To Curb Numbers Racket.

Richland county's representative, John L. Catlett, yesterday successfully supported a move to reconsider the so-called "numbers racket bill" to make operation of a numbers house a felony punishable by a maximum fine of $1,000, seven years in the penitentiary, or both.

A motion for reconsideration of the bill, defeated by a narrow margin Monday night, was adopted 65-24 at yesterday's session after Catlett had strongly backed the action proposed by Reps. G. L. Fenton (R., Williams), W. R. McChesny (R., Greene) and B. F. Reading (R., Toledo).

"Frankly, I am disturbed at the feeling the people of Ohio must have on the action we took on this bill," Catlett said.

"Some high-minded members of the house, whose integrity I do not doubt, unwittingly permitted themselves to become pawns of the racketeers when they voted against this bill."

Many members of the house ducked a vote on the issue Monday night, as only 109 of the 135 members answering the roll-call. Only eight more votes, of the 26 not voting, would have passed the bill.

Rep. Roy E. Longnecker (R., Wood) supported Catlett in his support of the motion to reconsider.

"The numbers racket is a million-dollar racket in many sections of Ohio," he stated. "It's time we put our foot down on this monster."

The bill at that time garnered 61 "yea" votes to only 48 "no" votes, but the constitutional majority of 69 votes is required to pass a measure.

Catlett said the bill was of sufficient importance to deserve full consideration by the entire house membership, thus indicating that a call of the house may be requested when the measure comes up for a vote again.

The house passed two bills and sent them to the senate. They were the Emick bill, to raise the salaries of minor employes of elections boards from $130 to $180 a month, passed 86-6, and the Williams-McClure measure, to provide for the appointment of an acting coroner by the county commissioners when the coroner is absent 30 days or longer or is in military service.

Rep. Ralph Sifred (R., Auglaize) and Rep. Harold Martz (R., Warren) jointly sponsored a joint resolution providing for the naming of a commission to investigate marketing associations and other cooperatives.

SEE OHIO COAL AS NEW SOURCE GASOLINE, OIL

Engineer Reports State Can Capitalize on Deposits of 90 Million Tons.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Ohio's 90,000,000 tons of unmined coal are considered by experts as a new source of oil and other essential products.

This is the conclusion of Charles E. MacQuigg, director of the engineering experiment station at Ohio State university, in a letter to Rep. Walter E. Brehm (R.-Ohio) who discussed with President Roosevelt recently a plan to develop coal and other resources in the state.

Saying the country is beginning to recognuize a need for research in the field of hydrogenation of coal, MacQuigg reported the college had engaged two fuel experts prepared to help develop the process.

Brehm said he asked MacQuigg for information regarding the development of coal after a conference with President Roosevelt in which the chief executive expressed interest in a plan to establish new industries in southeastern Ohio.

Preliminary calculations, said the letter, indicate liquified coal might be considered within commercial reach contrary to earlier estimates.

"There is no question," it added, "concerning the workability of the commercial process of hydrogenation of fuels since the processes have been widely used abroad for a number of years. It therefore seems that our reasons for lack of progress are purely commercial and not technical."

MacQuigg suggested "we are uniquely placed in Ohio to capitalize in this field very early in its commercialization. I believe this because of the nature of our Ohio coals which suffer by comparison with West Virginia coal, for example, in the domestic field.

"It would seem that the use of natural gas for fuel purposes only is abhorent from the philosophical point of view, because of its valuable properties as a chemical agent. Accepting this principle, one sees that the utilization of natural gas as a source of hydrogen to liquefy poor quality coals, transforms a great mass of substance—rendered less desirable because of smokiness, high ash, sulphur—into liquid form productive of gasoline, lubricating oil, etc.

"In other words, our Ohio coals could be transmuted into liquid and gaseuous forms so much in demand for domestic and transportation purposes."

FABLES FROM THE FIFTIES: Two years ago an unknown singer at the Palladium in Hollywood sat at a table with a slightly better-known songwriter and told him about his ambitions. In those days he was always telling everyone about his ambitions, and most people laughed.

"I'm going to be the greatest singer in the world," he said.

The songwriter didn't laugh, the way most people did. He just said:

"Okay, when you're the greatest singer in the world I'll write the song you'll be singing."

Maybe neither of them believed it then. But they weren't kidding, entirely. Because the songwriter was Sammy Cahn and the singer was Frank Sinatra. And the song Frank gets most requests to sing these days is "I've Heard That Song Before," by Sammy Cahn.

DIES AT AGE 76

A. W. Shaw, Former Mansfield Resident, Succumbs.

Albert Woodrow Shaw, former resident of Mansfield, and a member of the Masonic lodge of Mansfield, died unexpectedly of a heart attack last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clarence Cark, of near Lemert in Wyandot county. He was 76 years old.

Besides the daughter, he is survived by one sister, Rose Lanoue, of Dawson Park, Ill.

Mr. Shaw was a member of St. Luke's Lutheran church of Mansfield.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 10 a. m. at the Moore Funeral home in Sycamore, with Rev. Herbert S. Garnes, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran church, officiating, and at 2:30 p. m. at the Gilbert Funeral home in Ashland. Burial will be in Ashland cemetery.

CHARGES JUDGES LOBBY FOR BILL

Hiner Puts Ohio House In Uproar With Accusation on Pension Measure.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Although it adjourned Wednesday afternoon for the week-end, the Ohio house of representatives still was in an uproar today over the resolution introduced by Rep. Guy C. Hiner (R-Stark) calling for an investigation into alleged lobbying practices on the part of judges favoring the judges retirement system.

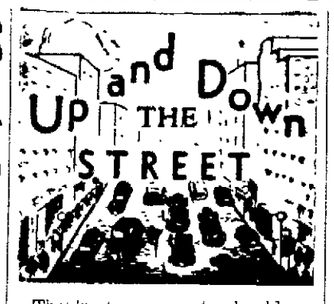
Hiner charged that the 37 attorney-members of the house were being threatened by the judges unless they voted for the senate-approved bill, which now is being considered by a house judiciary sub-committee.

As passed by the senate, the bill provides a maximum $6,000 monthly pension for judges at the retirement age of 60, but proponents of the bill have indicated that they would settle for a minimum pension of $1,500 annually, with a $5,000 maximum, to get the bill out on the floor.

Hiner charged that the judges who are favoring the bill are registered lobbyists, and hence are violating the law by advocating passage of a measure.

"I've shaken hands with so damn many judges that my hand's tired," Hiner told International News Service. "I've been invited out to dinner by judges I've never seen before.

"I've spoken to several young attorney members who have admitted that they would have to vote for the bill to protect their careers. That's the worst kind of intimidation.



They're too young to shoulder a gun, but pupils in Mansfield's elementary schools are doing their part to speed victory. Principal Jesse Beer of Newman school announced this morning that pupils from that school had collected six ton of scrap paper and magazines in a two-day house to-house campaign. The paper was sold with the net profit of $37.68 being used to purchase new reading material to supplement the pupils regular class work. A report from Western school says that during last two weeks, pupils have purchased $1,505 worth of War bonds. Parents had a part in the campaign, purchasing the bonds and crediting purchases to pupils.

Mansfield seed dealers are doing their part to help amateur Victory gardeners get started, and some of the situations they encounter have comedy in them One of the biggest stumbling blocks for inexperienced gardeners is the problem of purchasing the proper amount of seed. One seed dealer tells of a woman who ordered a pound of turnip seed. When asked how large a truck patch she intended to plant, she explained that the seed was for a small back-yard garden. A pound would plant a good-sized field. Another woman shopper asked for succotash seed, and the dealer wondered if it couldn't be supplied, after all, by mixing corn and beans.

5 INDICTED AS FUGITIVE AIDS

Federal Grand Jury Charges Quintet Harbored Man Who Robbed Postoffice.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Five persons were indicted by a Federal grand jury on charges of harboring Carl Straka, a fugitive accused of participating in the robbery of a post-office agency at Glen Robbins, Jefferson county, in January, 1937.

The quintet, indicted yesterday and scheduled for arraignment next Tuesday, are Charles Zascavage, 37, Dillonvale; Mae Boyle, 33, also known as Mae Williams and William E. Donnelly, 57, Steubenville, and Peter Joseph Smith, 47, and Ella Smith, 47, Williamstown, W. Va., formerly of Bellaire.

Paul Hollett, indicted with Straka in the robbery of the post office agency operated in conjunction with a U. S. Coal company store, is serving a five-year term for the crime in which the pair was accused of obtaining $3.68 in stamps or currency. Straka never was arrested.

Others indicted yesterday and charges included:

Walter B Matthews, 35, of Athens, concealing distilled spirits to evade tax; Zella Stricker, 51, of Mount Vernon, forging narcotic prescription, Annie M. Prestwood, 23, of Steubenville, increasing the amount on a national youth administration check from $2.52 to $25.52; J. Virgil Roush, alias Robert W. Geboe, 42, of Richmond, Ind., impersonating an internal revenue agent in cashing a worthless check for $15 at a Newark, O., hotel.

GIVE $1,431 TO RED CROSS FUND

Theater Collections During Campaign Presented To Secretary.

A check for $1,431.37 was turned over to the Mansfield chapter of the Red Cross yesterday afternoon by Grattan Johnson, city manager of Warner Brothers theaters here.

The check represented collections from patrons of the five Mansfield theaters—the Ohio, Madison, Majestic, Park and Ritz—during the week of April 1-7, at their contribution to the Red Cross war fund campaign.

Johnson was chairman of the war activities committee of the theaters in the county. However, the check turned in yesterday represented only Mansfield theater collections, Johnson said. The check was handed to Miss Miriam Hooper, Mansfield chapter secretary.

JURY'S OUT

Weigh Fate of Negro Linked To 'Lower 13' Murder.

ALBANY, Ore.—(AP)—The fate of Robert E. Lee Folkes was locked up today with the eight women and four men considering a charge against him of murdering Mrs. Martha Virginia James, 21, Norfolk, Va., in her berth lower 13 of a crowded railroad sleeping car.

The jury deliberated a few minutes more than 13 hours yesterday, then retired for the night on beds set up in the locked jury room. Deliberations were scheduled to resume around 9 a. m. (PWT).

Mrs. James was killed on a southbound passenger train near here early Jan. 23. Folkes, 20-year-old Negro dining car cook, is accused of sneaking into her berth and cutting her throat when she fought him.

IN HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Fred Astaire sat at the bar with his chin in his hand. He stared at a drink before him, then out a window. His face was sober. He looked very unhappy indeed.

The bartender was ringing up a sale on the cash register. Fred called to him. The man came over and Fred started to sing. The song was something about "One for My Baby and One More for the Road." It was obvious that Fred's love life was awry and that he had to talk about it.

Coons

His toes twitched as he sang, as if they wanted action. But his face remained sad.

Then someone yelled, "Cut!"

Dubbing is a difficult business. Fred has recorded the song on Monday. This was Friday. He was now going through the action for the camera alone, singing along with a play-back record. He was trying to remember every inflection, every nuance of rhythm he had put on wax, match them exactly. Someone would later put the film and the sound track together.

It was tough, but it was only the beginning. The sequence you will ultimately see in "The Sky's the Limit" begins at the bar mentioned above, an Hawaiian affair complete with palm trees and rattan walls. Astaire and his gal have gone pfft or words to that effect, and he is on the town. He sings half the song, then the scene changes to another bar. Fred is a little drunker in this one, a little more reminiscent. Finally, the locale shifts to the bar in which he met his girl. And the tapping toes at last have their innings

By this time, Astaire is what you'd call "tiddly-boo," so much so that he leaps on the bar, starts to dance and, in protest against all women, wrecks the joint. Bottles fly. Glassware is broken by the case. A chair is heaved through a large mirror.

The result is chaos, but Fred feels better.

This is the climax of the film. The crew has been working on it for months, planning how it can best be filmed. All told, 43 musicians have been involved, including Harold Arlen and Johnny Mercer, who wrote the tune, Phil Moore, who arranged it, and Leigh Harline, who conducted the studio orchestra and scored the picture. Freddie Slack and his band have also been involved.

Astaire himself rehearsed the number for four weeks, getting at last to the point where he wasn't mangled by flying glass. Nevertheless, a doctor and a nurse are on the set when he goes into his dance.

He's pleased with the routine, as it has a connection with the plot. The fact that his gal has thrown him over is the impetus for his footwork.

"I can't just walk in and dance," he says. "That makes my character a jerk. There has to be a reason."

He smiles. Someone says, "O. K., Freddie. We're ready for you."

He goes back, winds his feet around the bar stool, puts his chin in his hand, and begins staring at his drink. He doesn't look it, but Fred Astaire is a happy man.

Canton McKinley Bulldogs have Mansfield Tyger track Tutor Harry the Merry Mehock worried.

Now you might not expect a merry guy like the Mehock to do much worrying, but he does every now and then, in an off-hand sort of way, and in fact I understand that there's a lot of sleep lost at the Mehock menage every spring come track season.

But the Bulldogs have him worried on two scores, and the merry one feels that this is hardly fair of the McKinleys to double up on him that way.

With big Ernie Parks as the ace of the track team, McKinley naturally gives Mehock the usual worry on whether the Tygers will win or not.

But he's also worried over the prospect that the Bulldogs will walk out on him and not show up for their scheduled meet here Saturday.

McKinley cancelled a meet with Akron Garfield last Saturday because the weather kept them from practice. Then on Tuesday Track Coach Chuck Wright was called to Gunnison, Colo., by the critical illness of his mother, and immediately there was talk of postponing a Wednesday meet with Akron South.

Since Wright isn't expected back until Monday, Mehock doesn't know what to look for on Saturday.

From Canton comes the word that both the football and basketball squads at McKinley next school year probably will be without a returning regular from this year's great teams.

Dale Haverstock is the only regular on both teams with even an outside chance of returning, and he is expected to be inducted into service this summer.

Hank Smith is the only first string sub in sight for the football team, and he also may go to the army. However Coach Bup Rearick has put another big line together in spring drills, with a light, fast backfield.

With Don Willmot, end, and Captain Bob Wallace, guard, the only returning regulars at Massillon, Coach El Kammer has been doing a lot of experimenting this spring.

Willmot is at right half, and Bob Williams, sub center last fall, is at end after trying out at center and tackle. Romeo Pellegrini star passer of last year's second team Henry Mastrunno and Glenn Keller make up the backfield.

With this weather we might as well start the football season now. We're acclimated to it.

Hurlers Hold Edge This Year

Four Shutouts Tossed as Majors Lift Lid.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

IF OPENING day in the major leagues was any criterion, this may be the greatest pitchers' year in baseball history.

Four games, four shutouts, two of them 1-0, one of them 11 innings!

Weather conditions permitted only half of the eight scheduled inaugural games to be played yesterday, and held down attendance at these contest to 55,021 fans, but classic pitching made the day worth remembering.

Looking at the day's business in composite there was a total of only 11 runs, 42 hits of which just nine were for more than one base, and up till the seventh inning there had been but three runs scored.

* * *

The most magnificent mound show was given the largest crowd, 27,709 at Crosley Field in Cincinnati, where Lefty Johnny Vander Meer and Mort Cooper dueled for 11 innings before the Reds finally squeezed in front of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, 1-0.

A struggle almost as spectacular was staged for 13,847 fans in Cleveland's big municipal stadium as the Indians nosed out the Detroit Tigers, 1-0, with a run in the ninth.

The Pittsburgh Pirates handcuffed the Chicago Cubs, 6-0, with Truett (Rip) Sewell scattering three hits. Paul Derringer, making his debut in a Cub uniform before 9,044 fans at Wrigley Field, Chicago, restrained Pittsburgh to two runs till the eighth, when the Pirates plastered across four tallies and Manager Jimmy Wilson had to use three other hurlers to finish the game. Pittsburgh made 10 hits.

At St. Louis, Lefty Al Hollingsworth pleased a small turnout of 4,421 by pitching the Browns to a 3-0 triumph over the Chicago White Sox on four hits. The Browns bagged eight hits, but were held to one run by bespectacled Bill Dietrich till the seventh, when they clinched the victory with another pair.

* * *

The same teams were matched again today, with opening ceremonies planned at the four eastern parks which were closed yesterday. Tomorrow, Good Friday, is an open date in both leagues.

Patty Recovers From Auto Injury

CHICAGO (AP)—Patty Berg of Minneapolis, National Women's Golf champion before she turned professional, removed today over shooting a 78 on the Tam O'Shanter course, indicating she had fully recovered from the effects of a Texas automobile accident Dec. 8, 1941.

Miss Berg, who feared the broken knee cap she suffered in the accident might end her golf career, joined with Bill Gordon, home club professional, to win an exhibition match from John Revolta, former National P. G. A. champion, and Mrs. Lillian Krause of Tam O'Shanter.

Miss Berg left for Minneapolis declaring she expects to compete in the Women's Western Open tournament June 25 at Glen Oak, Chicago.

Marine corps sports facilities at Camp Pendleton, Calif., include 56 basketball and tennis courts and 81 softball diamonds.

KEGLERS INAUGURATE KNIFE-FORK LEAGUE

The bowling banquet season opens tonight, streamlined here and there on strictly party lines.

Keglers of the Commercial "B" league hold their banquet at the Mansfield Liederkranz club this evening at 6:30, while the Club league has scheduled a party next Monday night at 7:30 at Southern hotel.

As usual, distribution of prize money and election of officers will be the most important part of the program.

Wave Takes Blue Grass

Returns To Favor as Threat To Count Fleet.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — (INS) — Ocean Wave, Warren Wright's sterling three-year-old, today was back in favor for the Kentucky Derby with many of the turf fans following his impressive victory in Keeneland's $10,000 added Blue Grass stakes at Churchill Downs.

The Calumet farm star finished the mile and an eighth Derby tuneup yesterday two and a half lengths ahead of Amber Light and seven and a half lengths ahead of Crest, the third horse. By the victory, achieved over a low track, Ocean Wave redeemed himself for the defeats he was handed by Amber Light in the Louisiana Derby and Seven Hearts in the Arkansas Derby.

Seven Hearts, which battled for the lead with Amber Light in the early pace, tired badly in the stretch and wound up last in the field of six. Dove Pie was fourth and Valdina Sol fifth.

Wendell Eads, up on Ocean Wave, lay back while Amber Light and Seven Hearts were racing side by side and did not launch his drive until nearing the stretch. He then swung wide for secure footing and brought the Calumet colt home right down the middle of the stretch.

By this time Seven Hearts had foloed, but Amber Light under Johnny Longden put on a game fight and was not vanquished until near the end of the thrilling finish. Then Amber Light tired and Ocean Wave won going away.

Ocean Wave ran the mile and an eighth in 1.55 4-5 and paid his backers $5.80, $3.20 and $2.20 across the board.

The Warren Wright colt appeared at the peak of condition and was lauded by the experts, after his performance in the Blue Grass, as a real threat to the highly favored Count Fleet, owned by Mrs. John Hertz, in the $75,000 added Kentucky Derby a week from Saturday.

Count Fleet already is at Churchill prepping for the big race, along with a number of other elegibles. W. E. Boeing, the aircraft manufacturer telegraphed Col. Matt Winn, the head of Churchill Downs, that his two colts, Slide Rule and Twoses, definitely would be shipped to Louisville for the Derby.

Keeneland's 10-day meeting at Churchill was ended with yesterday's racing. The track will be idle until Saturday when the regular Churchill spring meeting opens.

GILES CHARGES NEW BALL NOT MADE RIGHT

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Charges by Warren C. Giles, vice president of the Cincinnati Reds, that the new official baseball is not up to specifications, were brought to the attention of Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis today.

Giles said he was speaking as "business head of a ball club" and not as a member of the committee which set for specifications for the ball. He was one of three National league executives on the committee.

She'll Ride at Pimlico

FOR THE FIRST TIME in the history of Maryland racing, a member of the feminine sex has been made a bona fide professional rider. The lady jockey is Judy Johnson, 29, of Washington, who was granted a steeplechase license. Successful as a rider, trainer and owner, Miss Johnson was a capable rider in England at the age of 8. Her father, a trainer, came to the U. S. to cover a race for a London newspaper. He stayed and his daughter followed. Miss Johnson handles a string of jumpers for T. T. Mott of Washington.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The opening-day major league scores lead us to wonder whether the 1943 model baseball really is dead, or just the hitters . . . and what became of the idea that managers wouldn't let their prize pitchers risk their arms for more than four or five innings in the early games? The Phils and Braves plan to play a morning game in June for the benefit of war workers . . . Well, that's one way of discouraging absenteeism.

BIG TIME STUFF.

New York City, which always has been a bush league town when it came to providing sports for kids, finally is coming up with a first-class competitive program this spring. . . . Now with $10,000 prize money, the Department of Parks reports an entry of more than 20,000 boys and girls from 12 to 18 years old in 13 events, ranging from basketball and softball to shuffleboard and (no kidding) horseshoe pitching. . . . City finals will be held in June and when you get teams like the 49th St. Rangers playing roller hockey with $25 war bonds at stake, we figure it will be something to wait for.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE.

Lieut. Benny Leonard of the U. S. Maritime service probably will referee the Pvt. Johnny Greco-Terry Young brawl at Montreal May 8. Col. A. G. White, handling the affair to buy sports equipment for Canadian soldiers. . . . Trainer Cecil Wilhelm says that until Devil's Thumb was injured, he hadn't seriously considered Slide Rule as a derby candidate, which explains why the colt is a bit behind in his training.

If you have any spare sports equipment lying around, the nearest army post probably could use it. . . . The navy's physical instructors school will be transferred from Norfolk to the Bainbridge, Md., naval training station May 3. Marshall Wins Over Christo

Fight With Bivins In Making For New Star.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Lloyd Marshall, fast punching Negro light heavyweight, was eligible today for an engagement with Cleveland's Jimmy Bivins, who is rated the best of the light heavies and heavies not fighting for Uncle Sam.

The manner in which Marshall disposed of Anton Christoforidis, former light heavy titlist, in their 10-rounder at the Arena last night practically assured a Bivins-Marshall match—probably an outdoor affair at the Stadium this summer.

The crowd displeaser of last evening was the eight-round semi-final between Jack (Buddy) Walker, Columbus, O., heavyweight, and Patsy Perroni of Cleveland. Walker was awarded the decision but it wasn't the best exhibition of his career.

* * *

Perroni, attempting a comeback after nearly two years of inactivity, fought mostly on the defensive. Walker did most of the leading but was overly cautious.

Marine Sergeant Barney Ross attended the show and greeted the crowd at intermission.

POSSUM OPENER SET FOR NEXT SATURDAY

Billie (that's Mrs. Irish) McGee awoke this morning in time to see the sun sweeping the frost off the hills and dales of Possum Run golf club, and announced "We will open for the season Saturday—if it doesn't rain, or snow, or blow up a blizzard."

Wet weather has retarded work of putting the course in shape, she reported, but there's nothing wrong with the layout now that a few days of sunshine couldn't cure.

Greg Rice Enters Penn 2-Mile Race

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — Gregory Rice, ex-Notre Dame runner who now wears the colors of New York A. C., will run against a field of six when he enters the two-mile jaunt at the 49th Penn relay carnival Saturday, it was announced today.

* * *

All five entries were filed within the past few days after carnival director H. Jamison Swarts had despaired of obtaining any rivals for the world indoor two-mile titlist.

Bagby Blanks Tigers In Cleveland Opener

O'Neill Weeps Over Dead Ball; Vandy Mystifies Cardinals.

By LARRY SMITH

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The American league is known as a hitters' league, but unless something is done with the 1943 official ball with the balata core many synthetic pitchers' battles will occur.

The Cleveland Indians' 1 to 0 victory over the Detroit Tigers in the season opener here yesterday was a preview of things to come.

Stout Steve O'Neill, the Tiger pilot, was generous in his praise of Jim Bagby's pitching but strong in his criticism of the new pellet.

"Why, the ball is deader than the one in use when I was playing ball," O'Neill declared. "It's going to have a bad effect on the game.

* * *

"The drives hit by Rudy York, Joe Hoover, Ken Keltner and Roy Cullenbine were the tipoffs on the deadness of the ball. The batters will be down when they realize that their efforts will be wasted. Any ball club will be lucky to get two runs in a game."

Bagby captured most of the honors in yesterday's opener. He not only limited the Tigers to three singles but batted in the winning run in the ninth.

Tommy Bridges set the stage for the Tribe's win by walking Cullenbine. After Otto Denning fanned, Buddy Rosar slashed a double down the third base line—the only extra base hit of the day—and his former Yankee teammate galloped to third. Ray Mack was purposely passed to fill the hassocks and make possible a force play at every corner.

Rosar, the former Yankee, collected two singles in addition to his ninth-inning double—and he wouldn't have been in the game except that Gene Desautels, rated by Manager Lou Boudreau as the Indians' No. 1 receiver, injured his wrist a couple of days ago.

* * *

The clubs resume their series today with Mel Harder the Tribe moundsman and Virgil Trucks on the hill for Detroit.

VANDY'S HERO

CINCINNATI—(AP)—So the Cincinnati Reds are off to a moderately brilliant start in the 1943 baseball season, which seems to be deactivated.

Ray Starr is today's nomination to keep it up against the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, opposed by either Harry Gumbert or Southpaw Ernie White. The customers hope today's supply of balls is better than yesterday's, when the players freely compared them to putty.

Vandy held the Cardinals to two hits and no runs, and it was well he did, for the Reds showed their characteristic inability to hit when it counts until the 11th inning. Then they got a whole run.

Morton Cooper gave six hits two in the 11th, and worked out of some squeezes. In the ninth when the Reds got men on first and second with none out, they did not score.

They filled the bases in the second for all the good it did. Frank McCormick's single, Eric Tipton's terrace seat double, and an intentional pass to Ray Mueller set things up, but Vander Meer was called out on strikes.

However, Vandy atoned with his pitching. From the fourth to the 11th he retired 21 men in a row. He walked five men and struck out only three, but the Cardinals never got enough of the bat on the ball which pleased 27,709 fans.

The 11th inning rally was simple baseball. Lonnie Frey singled back of first and was sacrificed to second. Max Marshall singled him home and that was all.

Cub Catcher Breaks Leg

McCullough Lost To Team For Six Weeks.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Clyde McCullough, regular catcher of the Chicago Cubs who fractured his left leg in the third inning of the opening game with the Pittsburgh Pirates, will be lost to the team for five or six weeks, physicians announced today.

"X-ray pictures disclosed an oblique fracture of the left fibula, just above the anklebone, and it probably will be five or six weeks before he can play again," Dr. John F. Davis, Cubs' physician, declared.

McCullough was hurt as he stole second base after hitting a single. He made a somersault roll as he slid into the base and apparently caught his spikes, twisting his left leg.

Two other casualties marked the opening game. Eddie Stranky, rookie Cubs' second baseman who twice in his minor league career suffered skull fractures when hit by pitched balls, was struck on the back of the head by one of Rip Sewell's pitches in the first inning and collapsed. He was able to resume playing after first aid.

A few minutes later Huck Geary rookie Pirate shortstop, crashed into second base in an attempt to break up a double play and twisted his ankle. He was able to resume play after treatment.

GAME POSTPONED

ATHENS—(INS)—Ohio State university's baseball game with Ohio university, originally scheduled for Athens yesterday, will be played instead next Monday, it was announced today. Yesterday's tilt was called off because of weather conditions.

IDENTITY PROOF NECESSARY FOR LIQUOR RATIONS

All Those Over 21 May Apply For Cards on or After May 3, State Says.

Mansfield and Richland county residents who plan to apply for liquor ration cards had better be prepared to give positive proof of their identity and residence.

This became evident today as State Liquor Director Don Fisher announced the working of the application set-up in Columbus. Fisher said that any resident of Ohio who has reached his or her 21st birthday is eligible for a card, if he can prove identity and residence.

This means that regardless of the number of persons in a family, all those over 21 may apply for a rationing card on or after May 3, at which date application blanks are to be made available at liquor stores and agencies throughout the state.

Starting Monday, April 26, persons desiring to make purchases before rationing goes into effect must visit the store in his residential zone. In applying for rationing one must also apply to the store in his zone.

After obtaining an application blank at the proper time, one must mail it back to the store and await notice that his ration card is ready for him to obtain. Then the person must prove his identity and address and sign the ration card. This signature must coincide with that on the application as well as on future purchase slips, Director Fisher said.

Aged and infirm people, who have been ordered by their doctors to take doses of liquor daily, but who are unable to go to their respective store for registration, will be taken care of under plans being worked on now, Fisher said.

Meanwhile, plans to take care of transients and soldiers are being formulated and are expected to be announced in a week or ten days, the director asserted.

'HARD-BOILED'

SAN FRANCISCO —(U.P.)— All inmates of Alcatraz penitentiary, the federal prison on "Devil's" island in San Francisco bay, are pot so hard-boiled as they usually are supposed to be. Cecil Snow, 34, Oklahoma postoffice robber, forced to stand a new trial on a murder charge, wept copiously when the jury found him guilty and expressed great joy at being back when he reentered the "Rock" to serve out the rest of his term.

GHOST OF MY LOVE +

By Oren Arnold

(Copyright, 1943)

CHAPTER XIX

They spent the next quarter hour just looking. Drinking in the landscape spread before them. Looking down on beauty that few people have ever seen.

It seemed to Rosemary that here was a majesty designed by the Creator to soothe the feelings and calm the soul. The quick despair which taunted her when Bill so impersonally gave her the ring and bracelet, began to ebb as they sat quietly on their horses and watched the darkness approach.

Away off toward California the sun cast a faint lingering glow on the horizon, as if reluctant to leave America. The ghost town in Purple Canyon, 2,000 feet below them, was blacked out entirely now, except for the two or three lights in Uncle Pete Quincy's hotel. That would be Uncle Pete, the Indian cook and the two lady draftsmen who worked there for Bill. Idly, Rosemary wondered why the women didn't go to Option for the week-end But then, maybe they, too, sensed the peace and beauty there.

She held her new ring and bracelet close to her eyes, studying them in the moonbeams Strange tribal designs had been hammered into them. The turquoise stones were richly blue now. She glanced at Bill. He was a stone profile. Looking far away. Thinking.

He must have sensed her interest in him because abruptly he turned.

"A fellow could build a great happiness down there," he said, surprisingly. "I mean, he could Imagine a home in these mountains. A ranch maybe. Place to raise cattle. Hunt, fish Ride all that. After the war rush is over, of course, and people can relax again. Rosemary, I was reared in a small community, and some day I intend to go back. Not to that same one, but to a beautiful wild land, like this. Just look down there!"

Some day Beautiful wild land. A region to build a happiness and a home.

"I-I think we'd better be riding, Bill," she declared, a bit frantic.

"Oh? So soon? I was hoping we—"

"Yes! We better start back. I'm sorry. But there are some things I just can't stand!"

He didn't pretend to miss that. He looked at her a moment, then nodded. "I guess it got you, too," he murmured "This view You have a—a right kind of heart, Rosemary."

That's all he said. Impersonally. Matter-of-factly. Then he led off down trail again.

But Rosemary knew that he had missed the point after all. She hadn't been too concerned with the view, gorgeous though it was. It was like a perfect setting for a drama but it, wasn't the drama in itself. What truly concerned her was the emotional danger. "There are some things I just can't stand," she had said, inadequately. What she meant was that she couldn't trust herself! Couldn't dare linger alone near Bill St. Clair, loving him passionately, yearningly, and share with him a discussion of the gentler, sweeter dreams of life.

"I'd make some sign!" she told herself now, riding behind him "As sure as fate I'd let it creep into my voice or or otherwise let him know. And I just can't. Not ever!"

It was that which hurt so miserably. Back there on the rim she found the night blow and the peace and the beauty casting an incomparable spell, in which she could soon drive out all despair and forget Harry Boyle entirely. But- there'd have to be an awakening. She didn't want to face tomorrow with a feeling of shame, and she didn't want Bill St. Clair to do so. Shame? Is it really shame, her inner self demanded, to love a man and give him some hint of that love, when you are unfortunately married to another?

Rosemary exhaled, long and trembly. She'd have to be careful or she'd be in tears again, and Bill must already have typed her as a cry baby, these last few weeks. Yes, she decided, it would be a shame. Marriage was no trivial affair, however impulsive and mistaken it might be.

"There's only one answer to my problem," she realized now. "I've got to get away from Bill. As quickly as I decently can, I'll resign my position and go far away and never see him again. It's the least I can do for him."

But she couldn't just walk out now. Not while he was in such a desperate trial here with the airfield project. That salient fact held her on the job for a few weeks more at least, and so she prepared for it by being as coldly formal as she dared.

They parted at the corral again, with few words. They seemed to have reached an unspoken understanding. They avoided each other all day Sunday, too. On Monday Bill was back at the new "Lightning Field"—carelessly but satisfactorily named that by Rosemary and she was directing the two women draftsmen in office blueprints and plans All told, the hours lagged wearily. Rosemary gave every thought she could to Harry Boyle again. If there were only some way to handle him!

At Sea 38 Years, Decides He'd Best Learn to Swim

NEW YORK (INS) Torpedoed, bombed and attacked thirteen times, Sydney Grant Wood, ship's engineer, has requested the United Seamen's Service to help him get swimming instructions after having been at sea for 38 years.

Wood, who went to sea in 1904, also had a narrow escape from a bomb on land. On the Fourth of July, 1940, he discovered and removed a bomb from the sixth floor of the British Empire building where he was employed. The bomb exploded shortly after he delivered it to the care of the New York bomb squad, killing two and injuring six.

The last time Mr Wood was forced to abandon ship, he could not leave in a life boat. He was ordered by his captain to jump and he did so although he did not know how to swim. His captain immediately followed and saved him.

Army Makes Baers Serious

Max and Buddy Quit Clowning In Uniform.

M'CLELLAN FIELD, Calif. — (AP)—Private Max Baer wears his khaki uniform in a different manner than he ever wore prize fight togs. He's serious and business-like and intense—three things no one could accuse him of when he was a challenger, champion or ex-champion. Yes, the Army's Air Service Command has a man in Max, not a play-boy with one eye on his opponent and the other wandering to the Broadway show girls sitting at ringside.

Max is on his first assignment since completing basic training. He's an instructor in the physical training division of Sacramento Air Depot Control Area Command, teaching boxing and wrestling to thousands of enlisted men at many installations in central and northern California as well as in Nevada.

It has been just a short time since the former world champion heavyweight and his brother, Buddy, enlisted in the Air Service Command. Now both are based here. Neither of the Baers were on call in the draft. In fact, both have children and probably would not have been called for some time to come.

Max finished basic training ahead of Buddy because the latter underwent a knee operation shortly after his induction and only recently reported for duty at McClellan.

The two cause a lot of comment wherever they go—so big that special uniforms had to be built for them. And, of course, there's the well known Baer charm that made the fighters popular with the crowds during their civilian days.

Where once Max swaggered and was boastful of his prowess in the ring or laughed at his defeats, he's more dignified, as befits his uniform, yet he's talkative about the part boxing and wrestling training can play in the war.

"You gotta keep cool — you gotta let a cold hate grow in you, if you want to win, either when you got them gloves on in a prize-fight ring or if you're out there facing the enemy," Max said, pulling his mouth down at the corners, gesturing with his big hands.

"When a man gets mad, he gets flustered. He doesn't know what to do. He gets off balance and throws the fight. We're going to teach the men of the Air Service Command to keep their heads, keep their balance, keep their lives."

Dirty judo—commando tactics in official circles—will be Max's prize lesson for the boys, the first several thousand of whom he organized at the Army Air Base in Reno, Nev., the first week he was out on a physical training assignment.

"We'll teach 'em the most vulnerable spots, we'll teach 'em all the foul punches, how to kill with their bare hands just in case they get in a spot where that's all they've left with which to defend themselves.

* * *

"Experience in the boxing ring will teach our men to dodge the enemy, think clearly and work fast. They'll learn perfect balance and control—something you need in everything you do, whether it's fighting or dancing, piloting an airplane or singing," concluded Max.

THEATERS

'Child Star' In Film.

Marie Osborne, the former Baby Marie of silent films, may be off on a "comeback" as the result of her role in Universal's Deanna Durbin picture, "The Amazing Mrs. Holliday," now playing at the Ohio. Producer-Director Bruce Manning gave the former child star, now an attractive brunet, a "bit" and "built up" her role after seeing her performance on the screen. Studio officials now have Miss Osborne under consideration for roles in several forthcoming Universal films. In the picture, Miss Durbin is co-starred with Edmond O'Brien. She lends her famous voice to the film in her 11th screen success.

Noted Beauties.

Evelyn Ankers and Elyse Knox, two of Hollywood's most popular beauties, have leading roles with the dead end kids and little tough guys in Universal's "Keep 'Em Slugging," now showing at the Madison. The picture, described as an action-melodrama, has Huntz Hall, Bobby Jordon, Gabriel Dell and Norman Abbott in its cast. Misses Ankers and Knox appear in many of the picture's exciting scenes which bare the activities of a notorious hi-jack gang. Bert Gordon, more popularly known as "The Mad Russian," teams up with Margaret Lindsay in the co-feature, "Let's Have Fun."

Spy Drama.

Featuring Irene Hervey with Kent Taylor at the head of a large cast of performers, Universal's "Half Way to Shanghai" takes over the screen at the Park starting today. The offering, described as a fast-moving action melodrama, is located aboard a railroad train rushing from Lashio, Burma Road terminus, to Rangoon. The plot unfolds in a train compartment, and centers around a map which discloses the location of China's secret munitions dump. "The Cyclone Kid," starring Buster Crabbe is the other picture.

Mystery Film.

Lloyd Nolan, the breezy cinema sleuth, again scores in "Time To Kill," now playing at the Ritz. In this story, Nolan, playing the part of the famous Mike Shayne, walks into more than he bargains for when he is hired to find a rare and valuable old coin which had been stolen from a wealthy old dowager. His search leads him to three murders which set the stage for some exciting scenes. Heather Angel and Doris Merrick co-star with Nolan. Other feature at the Ritz is "My Heart Belongs to Daddy."

THE 2nd WAR LOAN DRIVE IS ON!

Are you a Part-time American?

IT ISN'T HARD to figure your percentage as an American. Just check what you are doing against what you could do if you gave every minute of your day, every ounce of your energy . . . and, yes, every drop of your blood . . . toward winning this war.

Many men and many women have made that supreme contribution. Many more will make it —working, fighting, and dying—for American victory and American freedom. For the fight ahead is a hard one. We are just at its beginning, not at its middle, or near its end.

Of course, not all of us are—not all of us can be—in this fight with our lives. But every one of us, every man and woman, can be in it with our dollars!

Why a Lot More Money Is Needed NOW!

With every foot of ground taken . . . with every naval task carried out . . . with every bombing mission against the enemy . . . the costs of war increase. More men are needed in the fight. More ships are needed for our supply lines. More planes and tanks and guns are needed on the expanding battle fronts.

This takes money. More money and still more money.

That's why the Government of the United States is asking us to lend it 13 billion dollars in the next few weeks. Asking us to invest, this month, an extra 13 billion dollars over and above our regular War Bond buying. And make no mistake about this: Uncle Sam's got to get that extra money to keep on fighting this war!

How to Invest Your Share!

Some time soon, you may be called on by a War Loan Drive volunteer. He'll tell you all about the greatest investments in the world today—the wartime securities of the United States. How they're tailored to fit your situation and your ability to buy.

But don't wait for him. Decide now to dig down—dig down deep. Then take every penny you can and go to your nearest bank or post-office and turn the money into War Bonds.

Sure, it may hurt. But a lot of clean-cut young fellows in uniform are going to be hurt a lot worse than you are before this war is won. And don't ever forget this!

You're not giving your dollars—you're lending them. Your money's going to come back to you —and bring more money with it. Money that can mean not only no depression after this war, but plenty of peace-time jobs and peace-time goods for you and yours in a busier, more prosperous country than we've ever known.

So don't wait. For your Country's sake—for your own sake—invest all you can!

Here Are 7 Different Types of U. S. Government Obligations — Choose The Ones Best Suited to You:

United States War Savings Bonds—Series E: The perfect investment for individual and family savings. Gives you back $4 for every $3 when the Bond matures. Designed especially for the smaller investor. MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 22, 1943.

Money won't win the war, but it's a necessary lubricant for the war machine.

Culinary observation by a Wisconsin newspaper: "A pinch of salt is greatly improved by dropping it on a thick T-bone steak."

Definition that is going the rounds: "A co-ordinator is a man who brings organized chaos out of regimented confusion."

Foundation Stone for World Amity

WHATEVER else may come out of the neighborly call on the president of Mexico, just made by the president of the United States, one statement made by President Roosevelt might well be made a foundation stone for whatever post-war peace planning is now being done, as well as for the actual negotiations through which it is hoped to establish permanent peace.

To President Camacho, of Mexico, President Roosevelt, of the United States, said: "We know that the day of exploitation of the resources and the people of one country for the benefit of any group in another country is definitely over."

What a wonderful accomplishment, and what a marvelously changed attitude on the part of stronger nations, is reflected in such a pronouncement!

How much of the world's troubles, including everlasting strife in Europe and unending turmoil in the Far East, might have been avoided had the policy of "developing resources for the common good" been the impelling motive of all "enlightened" nations during the centuries in which exploitation has been the chief incentive to exploration and conquest.

Progress of so-called "civilization" throughout the world has been too largely based on greedy exploitation of militarily weaker nations to justify naive acceptance of an idea that the traits of "human nature" evidenced by such procedure have been suddenly changed.

Relations with Mexico have been troubled, in the past, by exploitation ventures from this side of the border which were a far departure from "good neighbor" policies, and suspicions of South American neighbors have sometimes been understandably aroused by schemes which seemed more designed to serve selfish interests than to contribute to "the common good of humanity."

If, through this war, conscience can be awakened throughout the world to the extent of placing the common good of humanity above individual, corporate and nationalistic selfishness and greed, the accomplishment will be the greatest in the world's history.

Japan Forfeits Right To Exist

THOUGHT by any American that those who dictate and administer the military policies of Japan merit designation as "human beings" is dispelled by yesterday's revelation that some members of the Doolittle raiding party that bombed Tokyo and other Japanese cities a year ago were barbarously executed after being captured.

Instead of being treated as prisoners of war, in accord with principles of international warfare, it appears that the Japanese followed the course for which they have become infamous, and subjected the fliers to what President Roosevelt termed "barbarous execution."

Little may be expected from the protest filed with the Japanese government through the Swiss Minister at Tokyo. Nothing can be done in such a case other than to concentrate all the forces of civilization in the task of utterly annihilating the military power of Japan.

Every bond you buy will help hasten the day of victory over this bestial, but still powerful, enemy.

Russia Also 'Land of Opportunity'

OF ALL the lands visited by Wendell Willkie on his 'round the world flying trip, of which he tells in his new book, "One World," the one of greatest current interest seems to be Russia. Since the revolution it has been an enigma to Americans, viewed with doubt and fear. Mr. Willkie turns that view squarely around and sees only hope. He found great unity in Russia, great loyalty and great vigor—a stout young nation making good under immense handicaps.

Walter Lippman, commenting on that part of the report, emphasizes and explains it in a few words. Russia has suddenly grown great, he says, because today it is a land in which careers are open to talent in a surprising degree, and able men can rise quickly to the top by their own exertions. This position and power seem to come almost magically to people fitted for them.

The picture starts Americans to sober thinking. This country has been like that, flexible, eager and progressive, and thus working miracles of progress. Some think there has been a slowdown in the United States—that opportunities no longer exist—but there are others who vision a post-war era of greater progress than has yet been experienced. There seems as great need for the pioneering spirit now as at any time in the past.

How Much Is 'Enough'?

TESTIFYING before the Truman committee, which is seeking information on the threatened coal mine strike, John L. Lewis said: "One way to get co-operation is to give the workers of this country enough to eat."

With coal miners' wages around $1 an hour, such a statement seems rather far-fetched. As the best-fed country in the world, none would support an idea that any class of productive workers should be underfed or go without other necessities of comfortable living.

But if men earning a dollar or more an hour are "going hungry," this would seem to apply to a majority of people in this country, for it is probable that a majority of workers do not make the average monthly wage of coal miners.

That young Nazi prisoner in North Africa, who says his father advised him to surrender at the first opportunity, seems well satisfied to become a Montgomery ward.

Senator Nye tells that a constituent paid $1.20 for a quart of milk in Washington—but it is understood that the old-time gold bricks are off the market.

According to Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, "brains have nothing to do with sex"—and she seems to prove her point.

Roll Away the Stone

THE THING was done. The evil ones among the politicians and the temple priests, the spies and schemers from all-conquering Rome, all those who'd watched with mingled jealousy and dread the growing power of the Nazarene, they'd had their way at last. The Carpenter hung dead on Calvary.

And yet, it hadn't happened as they'd hoped. They'd thought there'd be a riot in the streets, something to boast about at home, to lift the dullness of this heathen post. It might mean even furlough back to Rome.

But still, in spite of all they'd done, He'd passed in peace, asking God's mercy on his foes! There was no anger on His thorn-crowned face . . . no mark of fury where the cruel nails pierced nor where both blade and lash broke through the tortured flesh. No fury and no fear; there on the cross.

But there was terror in that taunting mob who'd come to kill, and now fled, scrambling, squawking, down the quaking hill! Was God, at last, defending His own son? The sky'd gone mad. Midnight at noon. Flares as though hell itself was spewing out their doom. The thunder bellowed and the lightning slashed long piles of bones on which huge, bloated buzzards crouched or flopped to wait. And in the Temple, where some sought to flee, the sacred Vail was rent from hem to hem.

Horror aplenty, on that Friday in Jerusalem. Until at last, Golgotha loomed alone, its crosses standing stark against the glare. And those who'd loved him and followed Him crept near, to see what might be done for that dear friend who chose to die that Truth might never end.

And so kind Joseph, having gained consent, took down the Body from the cross and laid it, draped in linen, in a fresh hewn tomb within a garden he'd prepared for his own rest. Yet hate persisted, even after death. So some demanded that the place be sealed with ponderous stone and soldiers placed on guard. And it was done. And so they left Him, sleeping there—alone.

Then, on the third day, after all were sure He'd died, some women came with dragging steps to Joseph's tomb, bringing the spices which they had prepared. It still was dawn. The air was heavy with the lillies' bloom. Old cypresses were pillars of blue gloom above the tangled sweetness of the violet beds. From foaming hedges sleepy birds began to call.

But suddenly the one who walked ahead stopped, dazed, pointing with shaking hand to where the stone had lain. The stone was rolled away! Then, venturing within, they found the body of the Christ was also gone. So filled with wild dismay, they summoned all the rest. And found that it was true which had been said—

HE IS NOT DEAD! NO CROSS CAN KILL, NO TOMB CAN BIND HIS SOUL. HE'S SIMPLY GONE AHEAD TO POINT AND PROVE THE WAY . . . LIFE DOES NOT STOP: IT JUST GOES ON AND ON, THROUGH ENDLESS BIRTH AND DEATHS. A MANGER, SOMEWHERE, IN BETHLEHEM . . . LONG, QUIET WALKS AND TALKS BY GALILEE . . . TEARS OF REAL HUMAN PAIN IN OLD GETHSEMANE . . . DEATH ON GOLGOTHA . . . THEN THAT RADIANT DAWN WE NOW CALL "EASTER."

Life does not stop. We only live and love and learn. And, by our courage, rise above each death and roll each stone away.

"I think if I could have one wish today,
"I'd ask—'Dear Father, help me roll my stone away;
"This stone I've made by my stupidity.
"This weakness which still bars me
"From the dawn—and Thee!
"Dear God, it's night—
"Reach down and set me free—
"It's Easter!"

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Sunday, April 22, 1923.

John C. Maxwell and Wellington T. Leonard announced completion of plans to erect a number of new homes in Mansfield during building season.

M. H. Scott, power engineer for OPS, was transferred to Lorain.

Gerard Kalbfleisch, student at ONU, Ada, was home for the week-end.

Pola Negri in "Bella Donna" was screen attraction at the Majestic.

Walter property on Springmill street was secured as first vacation camp for undernourished children.

Charles J. Becker, 67, died at his home, 55 Lexington avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fulmer returned from Plant City, Fla., where they spent the winter.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The great Oklahoma land rush began on this date in 1889, when the territory was opened to settlers. Another outstanding event that occurred on this date was the declaration in 1898 that war existed between Spain and this country.

Dave Boone Says:

GASOLINE and honor systems don't mix. Figures show that when the OPA lifted the official ban on pleasure driving and put autoists on their honor, pleasure driving almost got up to the previous normal. As I've so often said, there must be something about a steering wheel and an accelerator that weakens character.

OPA now warns of a growing gas shortage, bars all supplemental rations for people who would drive from a summer cottage to town this year and at last bans gas for pleasure boats. The only summer cottage that's going to be a comfort this year is one within bicycling distance of home.

Pamphlets are being issued in Italy urging Italians to be polite to invaders. I guess they don't want to give us any reason to suspect we ain't welcome when we start invading.

It wouldn't surprise me if Italy issued embossed invitations to our side any day now. When a country lets its sentimental feelings go so far that it asks politeness to an invader it may do anything to complete the good will idea.

• • •

Italians are so sick of the Nazis that they are not only about ready to invite us in, but to tell us that our invasion dress may be optional.

War Changes Doctors' Duties

FOR those who are having difficulty in making adjustments to the priorities that have already been imposed, it is worth saying that there are some medical priorities which are already under the way of adjustment and will certainly get worse within the next few months.

A few years ago the medical profession was sufficient in numbers to go around to everybody. There were specialists of all kinds—in fact, more than enough of them. Today certain specialties which must continuously be available to men in the armed forces are represented in our civilian communities by less than a skeleton force of practitioners.

This is particularly true of orthopedic surgery, eye surgery and general surgery. But the chief problem in civilian work today is to supply general medical care. The general practitioner, who did the routine work, has been harder hit than men in any other branch.

Shortage Serious.

For comparative purposes I cite a report from a certain Massachusetts town which before the war had 97 general practitioners of whom 30 are now in military service. Compare this to the number of general surgeons, 37 before the war — of whom 9 went into military service—and it will be seen that the problem of general medical care is a pressing one. About 50 per cent of the house calls made before the war were handled by the group that has gone into service.

In view of the gasoline and rubber situations, it is evident that there will have to be organized in most communities some sort of cooperative planning for medical service. In this campaign the patient must be as considerate as the doctor; the doctor's time must be conserved and house calls kept at a minimum. The doctor's day is planned in the morning and when possible, house calls should be received before 8 a. m.

Perhaps the best plan suggested is a central medical bureau which can be reached at all hours. The individual at the switchboard would be experienced and would be able to tell the patient where a doctor could be reached if it is an emergency, or would put him on a waiting list if it is not.

U-Boat Losses Blast Big Gaps In Letters to Soldier Sons Abroad

WASHINGTON—Many an American mother is hearing from her boy, "Why don't you write? I haven't had a letter from home for ages." And she knows she has written faithfully every day.

The explanation is the U-boat, which the war department regrets to say caused the loss of "several million pieces of mail" during the first three weeks of March alone.

But still the mother wonders why some of her daily letters don't get through. Even if a third of them were sunk her boy should have received 20 letters in the month.

Unfortunately, it doesn't work that way. If she writes 30 letters a month all those letters may have accumulated in the port of New York or some other port waiting for a convoy outward bound. Convoys cannot leave every day or two. So all 30 letters might go into one ship and if that ship is sunk her son will have no mail for a month.

There is no solution to this problem except to keep on writing.

Clare Luce and Wallace.

VICE PRESIDENT WALLACE doesn't know it but his most vigorous critic, Congresswoman Clare Luce, and her husband now have their personal attorney stationed on Wallace's BEW staff.

He is Alexander Hehmeyer, who has handled the legal work for Mr. and Mrs. Luce for some time and who now sits in on the BEW post-war planning committee for air routes. This is the same problem over which the vice president and the congresswoman from Connecticut tangled.

Behind all this is interesting background. Several months ago Time magazine, of which Henry Luce is publisher, printed a lineup of future presidential timber listing among others Vice President Wallace. The accompanying writeup gave him almost every conceivable bad break, with the good break going to Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

And the photo of Wallace featured by Time was one of those nightmarish effects caught by the camera in an off moment. No photographic "morgue" could have turned up worse.

Stung, Wallace called in the Washington representative of Time, Life and Fortune, told him that as far as the vice presidential office was concerned, future news pipelines were closed.

Shortly thereafter Congresswoman Luce took the floor to denounce Wallace's pet ideas of world peace planning as "globaloney."

That is why everyone is mystified over the fact that the Luce personal attorney has now suddenly turned up in Wallace's Bureau of Economic Warfare and is sitting in on the post-war air planning committee. The mystery may not be cleared up until Wallace returns from Latin America.

• • •

Phantom Congressman.

CONGRESSWOMAN Clare Luce is known to newspaper readers for her glamour, Speaker Sam Rayburn for his sagacity, Senator Tom Connally of Texas for his oratorical prowess.

But, the most phenomenal member of congress is Representative Charles A. Buckley of New York, Tammany Democrat, who never gets his name in the papers. He is known to his colleagues as the "phantom congressman."

Though Buckley is serving his fifth term in the house, there are only a handful of members who know what he looks like.

Strangely enough, Buckley is chairman of a committee, the house pensions committee. But it hasn't held one official meeting since the 78th congress began, and some of its members frankly admit they don't know their chairman from Adam's off ox.

The New Yorker also is third ranking Democrat member of the important public buildings and grounds and the patents committees, but you get the same story from members of these committees. "We wouldn't know Congressman Buckley if he walked through the door," they say.

Buckley's wraith-like qualities are a matter of great mystery to employes on the fourth floor of the new house office building, where he has an "office." Room number 1429 is reserved for him, and his name is on the door, but he is scarcely ever seen there. The office is locked day in and day out, and there's no secretary to answer the phone.

However, ghost or no ghost, ephemeral Representative Buckley manages to keep on realistic terms with the payroll.

The taxpayers shell out $6,500 a year for three employes who allegedly work in his Capitol Hill office: Hyman Korn, $3,500; Raymond Neary, $1,500, and Fred L. Flynn, $1,500.

British Democracy.

A GREAT deal is being written on the question "What are we fighting for?" but if the American public had looked in on the Servicemen's Canteen of the National Press club on a recent Saturday afternoon, they wouldn't have to be told.

One of the guests was a British naval officer, Rear Admiral S. R. Dight, famed in the British navy for his toughness in battle, and the saltiness of his sea yarns. At the Press club canteen, he more than justified this latter reputation to American soldiers, sailors and marines who flocked around him.

However, it wasn't until the party was about to break up that the admiral came into his own. Frank Tinsley, of the British supply council, suggested that the admiral "join in a few songs."

It isn't every day that an admiral, British or American, joins a songfest with gobs and soldiers, but Admiral Dight sang popular American airs with gusto and enthusiasm for half an hour.

Finally an American sailor called out, "Let's sing this one for the admiral—For He's a Jolly Good Fellow!"

What followed was probably the lustiest rendition of that familiar tune ever heard in the nation's capital. More than 100 soldiers, sailors and marines joined in the tribute to Admiral Dight, who looked almost as happy as if he had just won a naval battle. It was one of the things we are fighting for—democracy.

ERNIE PYLE — Roving Reporter

Americans In First Large Engagements Lacked Experience But Showed Bravery.

NORTHERN TUNISIA — (By Wireless) — I was away from the front lines for a while this spring, living with other troops, and considerable fighting took place while I was gone. When I got ready to return to my old friends at the front I wondered if I would sense any change in them. I did, and definitely.

The most vivid change is the casual and workshop manner in which they now talk about killing. They have made the psychological transition from the normal belief that taking human life is sinful, over to a new professional outlook where killing is craft.

To them now there is nothing morally wrong about killing. In fact it is an admirable thing.

I think I am so impressed by this new attitude because it hasn't been necessary for me to make this change along with them. As a noncombatant, my own life is in danger only by occasional chance or circumstances. Consequently I need not think of killing in personal terms, and killing to me is still murder.

Even after a winter of living with wholesale death and vile destruction, it is only spasmodically that I seem capable of realizing how real and how awful this war is. My emotions seem dead and crusty when presented with the tangibles of war. I find I can look on rows of fresh graves without a lump in my throat. Somehow I can look on mutilated bodies without flinching or feeling deeply.

It is only when I sit alone away from it all, or lie at night in my bedroll re-creating with closed eyes what I have seen, thinking and thinking and thinking, that at last the enormity of all these newly dead strikes like a living nightmare. And there are times when I feel that I can't stand it and will have to leave.

BUT TO the fighting soldier that phase of the war is behind. It was left behind after his first battle. His blood is up. He is fighting for his life, and killing now for him is as much a profession as writing is for me.

He wants to kill individually or in vast numbers. He wants to see the Germans overrun, mangled, butchered in the Tunisian trap. He speaks excitedly of seeing great heaps of dead, of our bombers sinking whole shiploads of fleeing men, of Germans by the thousands dying miserably in a final Tunisian holocaust of his own creation.

In this one respect the front-line soldier differs from all the rest of us. All the rest of us—you and me and even the thousands of soldiers behind the lines in Africa—we want terribly yet only academically for the war to get over. The front-line soldier wants it to be got over by the pyhsical process of his destroying enough Germans to end it. He is truly at war. The rest of us, no matter how hard we work, are not.

SAY what you will, nothing can make a complete soldier except battle experience.

In the semifinals of this campaign—the cleaning out of Central Tunisia—we had large units in battle for the first time. Frankly, they didn't all excel. Their own commanders admit it, and admirably they don't try to alibi. The British had to help us out a few times, but neither American nor British commanders are worried about that, for there was no lack of bravery. There was only lack of experience. They all know we will do better next time.

The First Infantry division is an example of what our American units can be after they have gone through the mill of experience. Those boys did themselves proud in the semi-finals. Everybody speaks about it. Our casualties included few taken prisoners. All the other casualties were wounded or died fighting.

"They never gave an inch," a general says. "They died right in their foxholes."

I heard of a high British officer who went over this battlefield just after the action was over. American boys were still lying dead in their foxholes, their rifles still grasped in firing position in their dead hands. And the veteran English soldier remarked time and again, in a sort of hushed eulogy spoken only to himself:

"Brave men. Brave men!"

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

An Old Man Passing

EACH YEAR for a decade past, two old men who own a pasture at the edge of our village have hauled manure from their stables, with their trusty mules and scattered it thinly over the rises of the field. This practice is kept up all through the winter, and the soil supports a well conditioned turf so thick that it yields luscious forage, even in dry weather. Several families rent this pasture for their milk cows. Most of the animals remain in the field, day and night, and are milked right there.

One old man managed differently. Each morning just after sunup, I met him on the highway leading his cow to the field. Each evening he led her home. I could guess what time it was, as I saw him come, so regular was his errand.

His heavy rubber boots reached well above his knees, for he was short in stature. I could hear the plopping sound of flexing rubber before he reached the highway. The cow was small but he appeared diminutive, walking rapidly by her side, with stooping shoulders, bent forward to keep the pace. Beneath a small iron gray mustache his jaws moved constantly. I judge he chewed tobacco lightly—a pleasant comfort to a man beyond his 80th year. Beyond a gracious greeting, his words were always few—and I liked him for it.

At evening I saw him walk laboredly alone into the pasture, made soft and greener by the last amber slanting rays. His bent form, with the cane, made a giant shadow that stretched half across the field, and his cow mooed a gentle welcome waiting for the gnarled hands to snap upon her neck the frazzled, tidy rope.

One day last week I heard he had passed away.

"I'll miss him," I said. "It was pleasant to hear his step upon the highway, his serene and quiet greeting, his cow watching for his approach with contented eyes."

"A good carpenter he was," said the neighbor who told me. "Used to plan, mark out and saw all the timbers for a building—then we'd all help with the 'raisin.' Good lumber was cheap and plentiful, in them days, and sawmills thrived all along this Clearfork stream. His relatives may raise a headstone with his name on't, but the honest work he did will far outlive the stone. He knew his work was done—yet that he's gone there's a vacant place about our village that he alone could fill."

GREAT LAKES PLANE CARRIER TRAINS FLIERS

Wolverine Will Never Go To Sea, But Readies Pilots For Global Warfare.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO — The U. S. S. Wolverine, the navy's only aircraft carrier assigned to inland waters, is being prepared to continue her training of advanced flyers.

The huge, squad ship is submitting to a "major operation" at her pier in Lake Michigan at Chicago. Her difficulty is so personal that the navy refuses to discuss it, but it was revealed that her innards are being given a "going over."

But frankly speaking there were many things to be done to the Wolverine, former pleasure liner, when she was christened last summer. So the repairs were being made during the winter lull in the training program.

Her skipper, Capt. Roscoe L. Bowman, is a "flying mariner," almost a pioneer of naval aviation. He started flying soon after his graduation from Annapolis in 1921 and once served on the U. S. S. Langley, the carrier sunk by the Japs shortly after the outbreak of the war.

The Wolverine, converted in Buffalo, is the only large coal burner in the navy. She is about 550 feet long and has a beam in excess of 100 feet, making her ideal for her part in the training of navy airmen.

The first press party allowed was shown through the ship by Capt. Bowman, following lunch aboard. The tour gave reporters an opportunity to see for themselves the tremendous size of the job of conversion which was completed in 58 days after the superstructure of the old cruise ship was wrecked.

Although she will never go to sea, the Wolverine is equipped to land any type of navy carrier plane. Her conversion was designed especially for the training in landings and takeoffs of flight students who had already won their wings.

Training in landings and takeoffs was described as the final phase of a flyer's course before joining a combat unit. All the safety precautions found on combat carriers are wroked into the equipment of the Wolverine.

The advanced students who utilize the ship are based at Glenview naval air base on the north shore of Lake Michigan near Chicago. Because the carrier has no hangar deck the planes return to their land base at the end of each day's problem.

The ship's navigator, Lieut. John J. Manley, is the only member of the crew who once operated the ship as the Seeandbee in the tourist trade to upper lakes points. He also is the only "fresh water" sailor aboard, the others coming from salt water assignments.

Capt. Bowman is a native of Carroll, Ia., and spent most of his boyhood at Manchester in the same state.

The Wolverine is to be joined by another converted carrier soon. The new ship will be named the U. S. S. Sable, and will make possible a considerable step up of training.

The Mennonites take their name from Menno Simons, who was born in Holland in 1492.

COTTONLEATHER NEW SUBSTANCE FOR SHOE SOLES

Devised In Small Southern Mill, Plastic Fabric Fills Wartime Need.

(By Associated Press)

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—Cottonleather, a new plastic produced by four young men and a girl in a small asbestor textile mill, soon will be making shoe soles for millions of Americans.

Big business is taking over the manufacture, for possibly 5,000,000 pairs of shoes annually. But the achievement is strictly a feat of little business. It was accomplished in a home-made, pine board laboratory, using a combination of hand-made, second-hand and new machinery, at the mill of the Southern Friction Materials company, down behind a woodsy hill at the edge of Charlotte.

Cottonleather is heavy, woven cotton fabric of the sort used to drive machine pulleys, impregnated with a special plastic binder. This forms a tan-colored solid, as hard but as flexible as sole leather.

The cotton fabric used is at present a surplus, due partly to reduction in manufacture of newsprint. The machines suited to making this cotton weave have been idle to quite an extent. The binder is inexpensive and not required for war.

The small plant rolls out cottonleather at the rate of a mile in four hours. That does not begin to fill present requests, so the company plans to license the process to large manufacturers. A contract has been closed with the Homasote company at Trenton, N. J., licensing that firm for manufacture and selling rights in the north, west and southwestern states.

The president of Southern Friction Materials is stocky Howard Snow whose acquaintances call him "the man with the overcoat," because he carries one when no one else does. Snow came to this mill as manager on a salary of $50 a week and orders to show a profit or liquidate the works. That was in 1932; 1942 was the eleventh consecutive profitable year.

Snow is the son of Charles Henry Snow, who for 40 years was dean of engineering at New York university. Howard Snow was graduated in engineering and worked in the advertising end of the McGraw-Hill Publishing company before coming here. Now he is principal owner of the Southern Friction Materials company.

BAKER HAS PROBLEM

SAN PEDRO, Cal.—(U.P.)—Pietro D. Carlo, baker, is facing a major war problem in his occupation. As a result of Secretary of Agriculture Wickard's order to bakers to deliver only uncut bread, he says he will never be able to meet the demands of his principal client—which happens to be the army.

HE LEARNS

SAN JOSE, Cal.—(U.P.)—Patrolman Doug Daley has learned how to be a bee expert—the hard way. When a call came to the fire department for Capt. Carl O'Dell, the fire company's bee expert, to come and corral a swarm of bees, he said he would come after he had finished his dinner.

Patrolman Daley decided the captain probably would be a long time eating and undertook the job himself. He succeeded beautifully except for the few that escaped and stung him. But now, he says, he knows how to prevent escapes.

New Point Values On Soups, Fruits And Vegetables

The following tale shows the new point values, effective last midnight, for frozen fruits and vegetables and all rationed soups:

Weight of Container (oz)	Point Values Old	New
All frozen fruits ...	16	13	6
Frozen vegetables:
Baked beans	16	8	4
Peas, and all other frozen vegetables .	12	10	4
Canned and bottled soups:
Tomato soup	10½	6	3
All other soups ...	10½	6	4

New weight classifications and point values for dried and dehydrated soups:

Less than 4 oz.—1.
Over 4 oz. but less than 8 oz.—2.
Over 8 oz. but less than 12 oz.—3.
Over 12 oz. but less than 16 oz.—4.

A powder extracted from the autumn crocus increases the growth of fruits and vegetables to double normal size.

BOOK DESCRIBES WAR CHANGES IN CAPE COD LIFE

'Journal For Josephine' By Nathan Among New Releases at City's Library.

Robert Nathan, who has scored so many successes with his poetry and whimsical novels, has turned his hand to a different type of writing in JOURNAL FOR JOSEPHINE, a journal which he kept during the past summer while he and his family were living in their home in North Truro, Cape Cod, Mass.

The book, which is among the new books to be placed on the shelves of the Mansfield Public library Saturday, is a journal of living and thinking—quietly picturing how the war has changed the traditional life of the Cape and yet how some of its most satisfying aspects are still intact.

WHITE MAMMOTHS by Alexander Poliakov is the dramatic story of Russian tanks in action by the author of "Russians Don't Surrender," who now tells the story of the "White Mammoths," the tremendous KV tanks which are helping to turn the tide against the Nazis—of the workers who built them, and of the gallant men who fight in them. It is packed with action.

TWIN RIVERS: THE RARITAN AND THE PASSAIC, by Harry Emerson Wildes, is a new volume in the Rivers of America series. It is a fast-moving, rollicking biography of two rivers, the Raritan and the Passaic, from the Battle of Monmouth to the battle of the New Jersey trusts, by way of the Industrial Revolution and the Ferryboat War and through the pages move many New Jerseyites, famous and infamous

BEHIND THE JAPANESE MASK, by Jesse F. Steiner, is a presentation of the life, customs, mental processes, social etiquette religion, moral ideas, philosophy, and education of the Japanese, and it clarifies the delusions which have been so fatal in the past, and gives the reader sound and invaluable knowledge of the Japenese people. Prof. Steiner taught English at North Japan college in Sendai, for seven years.

Other non-fiction includes: STRIP FOR ACTION, Lindsay and Crouse; MITCHELL: PIONEER OF AIR POWER, Levine. WE CANNOT ESCAPE HISTORY Whitaker ON NATIVE GROUNDS, Kazin. MENTAL ILLNESS, Stern; GLIMPSES INTO CHILD LIFE, Zeligs; WHAT READING DOES TO PEOPLE, Waples; TESTED ONE-ACT PLAYS, Sams, ed.; ELECTRICAL ILLUMINATION; Kraehenbuehl; BEHIND THE SULFA DRUGS, Galdston, M. D.

MOUNT ALLEGRO by Jerre Mangione is a light-hearted, sympathetic story of the Italian-American colony in Rochester, N. Y. There is Papa Gasparino who has no peer in baking bread or making wine; Uncle Luigi, Uncle Nino, who has intellect, and host of others. Jerre Mangione knows these people of whom he writes for he was born among them.

SEARCH FOR A KEY by Walter Duranty is a novel about a foreign correspondent who witnessed—at first hand—the history-making events in Russia, in China, in Germany, that led into the present war, and who searched for the meaning of life in the midst of the political upheavals of our times.

CHICKEN EVERY SUNDAY, by Rosemary Taylor, is a pleasant story about a happy family in Tucson before that city was a fashionable resort. Mother began with one boarder and then built larger and larger houses as her business grew. She fed them well and charged them well, but father was a hopeful promoter and their bank account was a joint one, so mother was obliged to spend her money to have it. Father liked the women boarders young and pretty, but mother seldom had room for that kind. The boarders were part of the family and everyone had a food time in a helter-skelter house where the good meals were the only certainty.

Other fiction includes: AGAINST A DARKENING SKY, Lewis; FRIDAY, THANK GOD, Rives; THE BLACK ANGEL, Woolrich.

High In Scholarship Tests

Shown above are three pupils of Woodville school who were highest scorers among pupils of Madison and Mifflin township schools taking eighth year scholarship tests given by the state department of education. They are left to right Charles Campbell, Marie Ellis and Robert Criblez. Nearly 100 eighth grade pupils participated in the tests.

COMES TO COURT

LOS ANGELES, Cal. —(U.P.)— Israel P. Bower has brought suit for $2,000 damages against H. F. Berry, alleging that a coatimundi or Brazilian ant bear which lives by eating ants, and belonging to the latter, had mistaken him for an ant.

He alleges the bear first tried him out for eating purposes by taking a nip at his ankles and then at his wrist. Berry had the ant bear led in to court by his three young daughters just to show that he is perfectly tame and not addicted to making mistakes in his diet.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Books about Uncle Sam's ships —fighting ships—are equally interesting to young and old alike. Two of the new books which will be placed on the shelves of the children's section of the Mansfield Public library Saturday tell of submarines and aircraft carriers.

HE'S IN SUBMARINES NOW, by Henry Palsen, gives the story of the careful selection of submarine sailors from the group who volunteer for this dangerous service. Their training is described and illustrated here for young readers. Some will become officers and nearly all will be in the midst of a battle zone when their training is completed. What can be revealed of routines of service has been included here.

AIRCRAFT CARRIER, by Robert A. Winston, a navy lieutenant, shows how the aircraft carrier has changed the course of the war. The author has given a description of the craft and of the men who serve aboard. Many of the famous carriers are pictured and some battle formations are illustrated.

Other new books include GEORGE WESTINGHOUSE, by H. Gordon Garbedian, the thrilling true story of industrial progress and the man who helped to make it, and STORIES FROM THE GREAT METROPOLITAN OPERAS, by Helen Dike, a book for young music lovers filled with tunes, colored illustrations of characters and brief stories of the favorite operas.

American farmers have been asked to produce 57 billion quarts of milk in 1943.

Speakers Listed For Red Cross Recruiting Rally

Miss Mary McDevitt, chief consultant for the fifth Red Cross area, and Lieut. Edna E. Sharritt, Army Nurse Corps, will speak at the Red Cross Nurse recruiting rally to be held at John Simpson Junior high next Tuesday.

Mansfield's part in recruiting for the 36,000 army and navy nurses will be explained by the nurses. Recruiting of nurses is one of the largest jobs yet assigned to the Red Cross. A monthly quota of 50 nurses has been set for the Cleveland area of which Mansfield is a part.

Ten nurses from Mansfield General hospital are already serving with the army and navy here and overseas. Ruth Kirkpatrick and Madonna Viers are on duty in Australia. Helen Becker is stationed in Panama and Mann Menrath and Mary Turich are at Norfolk, Va. Florence Sherer recently reported for duty at Atlanta, Ga., and May Ellen Spreisterback and Margaret Beam are on duty at Fort Knox, Ky. Frances Crone is now in England and Eleanor Studor is stationed in Trinidad.

JOURNALISTS DESCRIBE 'LAST TUNISIA BATTLE'

Three Veteran Correspondents See British Winning on Land as Yanks Rule Sky.

(Editor's Note: Three veteran United Press war correspondents, Edward W. Beattie, Ned Russell and C. R. Cunningham, met by chance last Sunday at a town close to the front line in Tunisia. While chatting on the balcony of a little French hotel, they exchanged ideas for the following dispatch explaining how and why the Allies are going to win the Battle of Coffin Corner in northeastern Tunisia.)

By. EDWARD W. BEATTIE
(UP Staff Correspondent)

SOMEWHERE ALONG THE TUNISIAN FRONT, April 18.—(Delayed)—The last battle of Tunisia—the drive that will run the Axis from Tunis and Bizerte into the sea—will be predominantly a British show on land, with Americans ruling the skies and supporting the infantry with their deadly accurate artillery.

The British outnumber the Americans on the front line and have a decided edge in experience. But all the Allied units—the British First and Eighth armies, the American Second corps and the valiant French forces—will fight shoulder to shoulder, each doing its part in the big offensive. Most important of all, they are now in a position to win that offensive.

These armies are massed in strength around a perimeter made up of a small semi-circle of mountains from which they are going to chase the Germans and Italians out of North Africa as the first step toward meeting the Axis on its own ground somewhere along the northern edge of the Mediterranean basin.

Three of us, United Press correspondents who have been with the Allied forces on the swiftly changing Tunisian fronts, got together today to compare notes on the action we have seen and to sum up our ideas about the hard battle that lies just ahead.

The others are Ned Russell, who covered much of the Battle of Britain, landed with the first American troops in North Africa, spent three months on the northern front and the last two with the victorious British Eighth army, and Chris Cunningham, who sailed to Britain with the first American troops, came to North Africa and joined American and British forces that ran Marshal Erwin Rommel out of southern Tunisia.

These are our honest opinions of the men and armies that have been through from five to 25 months of hard and often discouraging campaigning and now are ready for their last big test on this continent.

The British First army that has been trading punches with the enemy in northern Tunisia since the war opened in this theater is just coming into its own. It is the army that made a bold dash for Tunis at the start of the campaign with its "blade force" of just over half a division and an odd mixture of weapons.

The force failed to take Tunis by a margin of from 48 to 72 hours, then went into a purely defensive period while building strength. With the capture of the Moslem holy city of Kairouan, the First army played its first major offensive role.

Men of the First army have sworn to be the first Allied troops to march into Tunis, which lies almost on the site of ancient Carthage.

The British Eighth army has been described as the world's greatest fighting force today. It is a proud collection of British, Australians, New Zealanders and Indians and has learned every trick of fighting along 2,000 miles of desert.

Now it will have to learn a few tricks of warfare. It stands on Enfidaville plain facing mountains which cannot be outflanked—its favorite method of gaining objective. With exception of El Alamein and the Gabes gap, the Eighth army never has faced an obstacle it could not sweep around and those positions were such that a reasonably small bridgehead could be driven into the line by hard-hitting frontal assaults to make way for armor.

Now Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's men must learn a new style of fighting—close quarter slugging for each strong point in a mountain defensive network where the loss of any single position does not call for a general retreat. It will be their toughest test.

American artillery undoubtedly will be one of the biggest factors in the final assault, just as American planes will continue to play an important part of softening up the Axis at its vitals—transport and supply.

There are two reasons for American artillery superiority. The first is the overwhelming number of big guns and the second is the unexcelled brand of gunnery which has amazed the Germans. Prisoners have testified to its deadly effect.

USO ATTENDANCE UP

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Men of the armed forces are changing their recreational activities since gasoline rationing started. The United Service organizations reported a steady increase in attendance at USO clubs, with the average now more than 12,000,000 a month.

Advises Hiring Women to Fill Draftees' Jobs

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. —(INS)— "Whenever a man is lost to selective service or war industry, hire a woman in his place," is the advice of Louis B. Raycroft, regional director of the war manpower commission.

In an address to the Retail Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, Raycroft made four additional suggestions for the conservation of manpower:

"If you must have a man, try to hire an older worker without those skills or aptitudes needed in the war program.

"Use non-citizens, or other groups who often have difficulty security war jobs; especially use all the physically handicapped workers you can.

"Recognize that many of your workers will be untrained. Train them yourself.

"Begin now to give attention to the possibility that you will have to use part-time workers.

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

Grandma Hoskins knows a lot about history—but when we asked her where the first brewery was built in America, she wouldn't take sides.

"You see," says Grandma, "wherever the colonists settled, one of the first things they thought about was food and beer ... In fact, one reason why the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock was because the Mayflower was runnin' short of beer."

Well, that was a new one on us, but Grandma showed it to us—just as it was written in the Mayflower's log.

And it seems that all through our early American history beer sort of tempered the hardships and helped to make us a tolerant, moderate people.

From where I sit, beer is the American drink of moderation and friendliness—kind of a symbol of our personal liberty.

Trophies Brought Back From Pacific War

Sgt. Jacob Eichof, left, and Staff Sgt. Robert R. Champion, above, look over a Japanese 25-caliber rifle that Champion brought back from the Pacific war zone last week when he returned on furlough. It was taken from a dead Nip warior on Guadalcanal along with the bayonet and clip of 25-caliber shells held by Sgt. Eichof, and some photographs of Japanese soldiers. The trophies are believed to be the first to reach Mansfield from the Pacific war zone.

MANSFIELDER PRIZES JAP GUN, PHOTOGRAPHS TAKEN FROM NIPS

What are believed to be the first trophies of the war in the Pacific to reach Mansfield were brought back last week by one of nine Mansfield district soldiers who returned from the war zone on furlough.

The souvenirs include a Japanese 25-caliber rifle and bayonet, a clip of 25-caliber shells and several photographs of Japanese soldiers, probably his friends, taken from the body of a dead Nip on Guadalcanal.

One of the photographs shows one of the Japs attired in the traditional prayer belt which, Champion said, is a cloth wrap-around and stitched by 1,000 of the soldier's friends. It is expected to protect the Nipponese soldier during battle with the enemy.

The rifle, although a small bore has a simple mechanism and probably weighs little more than the U. S. army Springfield. The bayonet is a two-edge affair.

Although he missed action himself, Staff Sergt. Robert R. Champion, stationed on one of the islands in the southwest Pacific, obtained the trophies from other U. S. soldiers who had returned from the thick of the fighting.

Sgt. Champion, a former member of Battery D, Ohio National guard, has been in the battle zone for the past 10 months.

Other Mansfielders who returned with Champion include Jacob Eichof, Severn Skulski, Leslie Snyder, Howard Perathoner, Ross Laufman, Paul Rein, and Morrison Boyle.

The men will leave Mansfield Monday for Camp Hood, Cal., where they expect to undergo additional training.

Proper Planting of Beets In Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Ass'n.)

Beet seeds may be planted outside just as soon as it is possible to prepare the soil. Light frosts will not injure either the seeds or young plants.

Beet seeds should be sown thinly since one kernel will send up several sprouts, sometimes as many as six.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, plant beet seeds one inch apart along the row and one inch deep. The distance apart the rows are placed will depend upon the size of the Victory garden and the type of wheel cultivator used, if any other than the good old hoe. The rows may vary from 14 to 24 inches apart.

The thinning of young beet plants should begin early. Do not wait until the plants have become injured by overcrowding. Thin the plants to four inches apart in the row, as illustrated. The thinned out plants can be replanted in some other part of the garden or they can be used as table greens. If the thinned out plants are transplanted they will mature about 10 days later than the rows from which they were taken.

Successive plantings of beets should be made all summer and any surplus of the early beet plantings can be canned for winter use. Ample amounts of the late varieties of beets should be planted with the intention of storing the harvested roots for winter use.

COPS 'MOTHER' SERVICE MEN

Brockton Police Conduct a Week-End 'Hotel' For Soldiers, Sailors.

BROCKTON, Mass. — (INS) — Brockton police play host every week-end to soldiers and sailors who become stranded between their respective camps and homes. As many as 35 are housed free of charge.

Inspector Harry F. Kearns, in charge of the night shift, runs the headquarters like a real hotel and has been dubbed "hotel manager" by brother officers.

Service men seeking accommodations for the night register at the regular booking desk.

When a "guest" is properly identified, he is given a blanket, pillow, towel and soap and is assigned to a cot in the upper guardroom.

Once he is settled, the soldier or sailor can make himself at home in the station house. Magazines, books and a radio have been provided.

The Brockton service men's center cooperates with the police by serving breakfast to the boys about 7:30 each morning.

The police have dealt sternly with local drunks who have tried to invade the "hotel." These men have been hustled downstairs where they sleep in cold and uncomfortable cells.

Tortoises found on the Galapagos Islands weight up to 400 pounds.

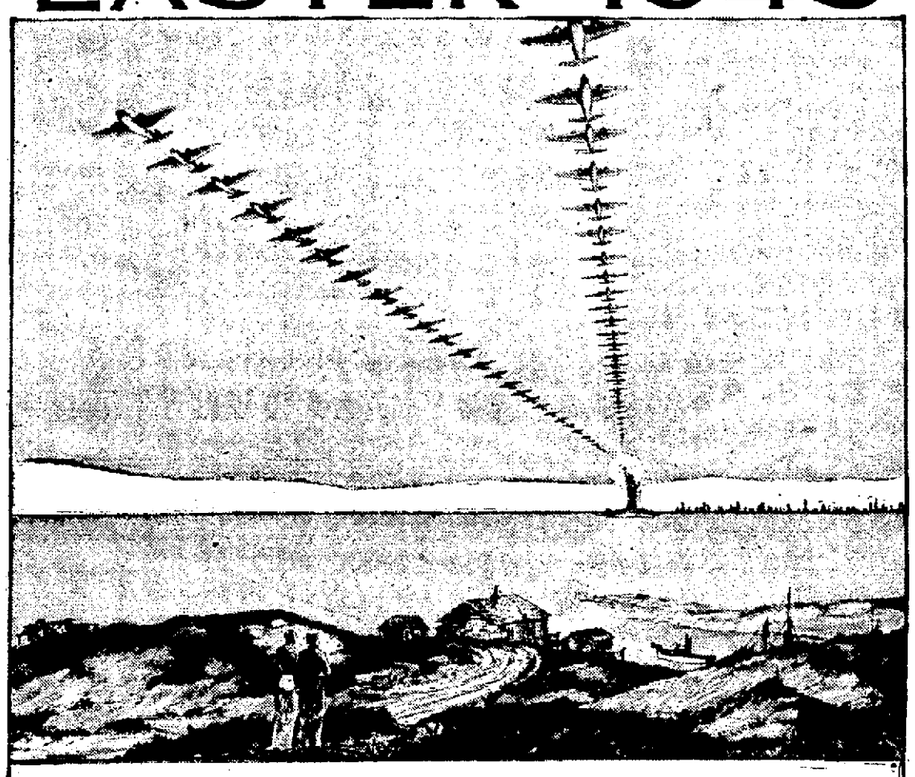
EASTER 1943



AS EASTER DAWNS through the clearing war clouds, it heralds a brighter spring, full of fresh hope and faith!

Last year, the happy custom of serving a KINGAN Reliable Ham for Easter was observed in tens of thousands of homes. This year, even if you have conserved your meat ration points, you will be fortunate if you can buy a KINGAN Ham — for war needs come first. KINGAN AND COMPANY daily are supplying huge quantities of meat to our Armed Forces at home and abroad, and this Easter the ham you might have had will be enjoyed by those who fight for us!

KINGAN AND COMPANY believe that if you are deprived of an Easter Ham this year, you will be comforted by knowing that this and the other things you must do without, are helping to bring the day of ultimate Victory nearer and nearer!

THE 2nd WAR LOAN DRIVE IS ON!

Are you a Part-time American?

IT ISN'T HARD to figure your percentage as an American. Just check what you are doing against what you could do if you gave every minute of your day, every ounce of your energy . . . and, yes, every drop of your blood . . . toward winning this war.

Many men and many women have made that supreme contribution. Many more will make it—working, fighting, and dying—for American victory and American freedom. For the fight ahead is a hard one. We are just at its beginning, not at its middle, or near its end.

Of course, not all of us are—not all of us can be—in this fight with our lives. But every one of us, every man and woman, can be in it with our dollars!

Why a Lot More Money Is Needed NOW!

With every foot of ground taken . . . with every naval task carried out . . . with every bombing mission against the enemy . . . the costs of war increase. More men are needed in the fight. More ships are needed for our supply lines. More planes and tanks and guns are needed on the expanding battle fronts.

This takes money. More money and still more money.

That's why the Government of the United States is asking us to lend it 13 billion dollars in the next few weeks. Asking us to invest, this month, an extra 13 billion dollars over and above our regular War Bond buying. And make no mistake about this: Uncle Sam's got to get that extra money to keep on fighting this war!

How to Invest Your Share!

Some time soon, you may be called on by a War Loan Drive volunteer. He'll tell you all about the greatest investments in the world today—the wartime securities of the United States. How they're tailored to fit your situation and your ability to buy.

But don't wait for him. Decide now to dig down—dig down deep. Then take every penny you can and go to your nearest bank or post-office and turn the money into War Bonds.

Sure, it may hurt. But a lot of clean-cut young fellows in uniform are going to be hurt a lot worse than you are before this war is won. And don't ever forget this!

You're not giving your dollars—you're lending them. Your money's going to come back to you—and bring more money with it. Money that can mean not only no depression after this war, but plenty of peace-time jobs and peace-time goods for you and yours in a busier, more prosperous country than we've ever known.

So don't wait. For your Country's sake—for your own sake—invest all you can!

Here Are 7 Different Types of U. S. Government Obligations — Choose The Ones Best Suited to You:

United States War Savings Bonds—Series E: The perfect investment for individual and family savings. Gives you back $4 for every $3 when the Bond matures. Designed especially for the smaller investor. Dated 1st day of month in which payment is received. Interest: 2.9% a year if held to maturity. Denominations: $25, $50, $100, $500, $1000. Redemption: any time 60 days after issue date. Price: 75% of maturity value.

2½% Treasury Bonds of 1964-1969: Readily marketable, acceptable as bank collateral, these Bonds are ideal investments for trust funds, estates and individuals. A special feature provides that they may be redeemed at par and accrued interest for the purpose of satisfying Federal estate taxes. Dated April 15, 1943; due June 15, 1969. Denominations: $500, $1000, $5000, $10,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000. Redemption: Not callable till June 15, 1964; thereafter at par and accrued interest on any interest date at 4 months' notice. Price: par and accrued interest.

Other Securities: Series "C" Tax Notes; ⅞% Certificates of Indebtedness; 2% Treasury Bonds of 1950-1952; United States Savings Bonds Series "F"; United States Savings Bonds Series "G."

BRITISH HALT THREE GERMAN TUNISIA DRIVES

25 Enemy Tanks Destroyed, 500 Prisoners Taken In Bitter Fighting.

were withdrawing," having suffered considerable casualties," the communique said.

Two of the 25 tanks destroyed were the new 60-ton Mark VI Tigers.

Light bombers of the tactical air force again attacked Axis air fields and ground positions. Fighters kept up their offensive sweeps over the front areas yesterday and ten enemy planes were shot down during the day, it was announced.

Four more Axis planes were destroyed Tuesday night.

The preceding night, a small unit of light coastal forces, patroling the coast near the naval base of Bizerte, encountered a number of German E-boats and attacked.

One of the small enemy vessels was hit and an explosion was seen, after which the craft withdrew under a smoke screen, and other enemy ships also were hit before they retired, the communique said. The Allied forces returned to their base without casualties.

Tuesday night Allied naval forces sank a small enemy supply ship northwest of Sicily, the communique said.

(The German communique, reporting the action in the Medjez-El-Bab sector, said German forces "attacked and achieved their objectives." The communique, recorded from the Berlin radio by Associated Press, said Allied attacks on the southern front were held by "unshakeable" Axis resistance.)

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Axis troops have dug themselves into a series of elaborate fortifications along all the approaches to Tunis and the Allied drive to the sea seemed destined to be slow and costly.

Important positions on the fringes of the mountain barrier defended by Rommel already have fallen to Montgomery's experienced campaigners, who have inched forward in the face of concentrated fire from mortars and heavy machineguns. But the Eighth army is attacking in country where all the natural features of the terrain favor the defenders.

A two-mile advance in the region of Djebel Garci, 10 miles inland from the coast, was made in "very severe fighting" and British forces have driven five miles northwest of Enfidaville to encircle the mountain citadel of Takrouna.

Even after the Axis deep southern defense line is pierced, there will still remain the rugged heights of Djebel Zaghouan, the highest mountain in Tunisia, from which the Germans could shell any movement in the vicinity.

One factor favoring the Allied forces was the domination of Tunisia's skies by British and American fliers.

The Germans were aided temporarily by sleet and snow storms which restricted aerial activity over a large part of the Axis stronghold. In the three days ending Tuesday, Allied planes had destroyed a total of 151 enemy aircraft.

American-manned Spitfires frustrated an attempt by Messerschmitt 109's to bomb Allied troops east of Medjez-El-Bab. The Nazi planes were forced to jettison their explosives and two Focke-Wulf 190's which joined in the subsequent battle were shot down.

Relatively bad flying weather restricted aerial operations, but a number of bombing and machine-gunning sweeps were carried out by Allied squadrons over Tunisia, and Malta-based Spitfires knocked down four more Junker-52 transports. Ten enemy aircraft were destroyed during the day by the North African squadrons, while four Allied planes failed to return from all operations.

Air Combat In Pacific Dwindles

(By United Press)

Air combat in the Pacific dwindled to small thrusts today as a member of the Allied high command predicted new and heavy losses for the Japanese this summer.

In scattered forays yesterday, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's bombers destroyed two enemy planes and bombed or shot up enemy-held villages and airdromes north of Australia while for the second night a single Japanese plane ranged over Morobe, on the north New Guinea coast, without doing any damage.

Lieut. Gen. Millard G. Harmon, commander of army forces in the South Pacific, said American pilots far outclass their enemies and forecast losses for the Japanese on land and sea and in the air during the summer.

Allied fliers on various fronts kept banging at Japanese targets. A Washington dispatch said 260 tons of bombs had been dropped on a small area of the Japanese base on Kiska, in the Aleutians, the first 19 days of April.

A Chinese communique reported the collapse of a Japanese drive east of Canton with 800 casualties inflicted on the enemy by Chinese counter-attacks and the repulse of al ocal offensive south of Canton.

Nazis Bomb Aberdeen Loss Feared High

LONDON—(AP)—German bombers attacked a Scottish town, identified by the Berlin radio as Aberdeen, last night and it was feared heavy civilian casualties were suffered there, authoritative sources said today.

The Berlin broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, gave few other details concerning the raid, which the British said was one of the heaviest yet directed against the town.

Several families were reported still buried under debris of smashed tenements . . . in a suburban housing development several homes were wrecked and many others badly damaged, but most of the residents had reached shelters before the bombs were dropped.

One bomb fell on the corner of a hospital, killing a nurse and a patient and injuring several others.

Another bomb crashed into a shelter in which there were a number of men and killed all but two of them.

Twenty others were trapped under a four-story tenement, which was one of three hit on a single street.

Bombs dropped near other Scottish towns, but most of them fell on open ground.

Ventura bombers late yesterday followed up Tuesday night's attacks on Stettin, Rostock and Berlin by bombing the railway yards at Abbeville, France. One German fighter was destroyed and three Venturas and two British fighters were reported missing.

REPORT HITLER WILL USE GAS

British Promise Reprisals If Nazis Resort To Chemical Warfare.

ties) have greatly increased since last year."

The Berlin radio, replying to the British statement, quoted German foreign office circles as saying that Germany would stand by a pledge given last year that she would use poison gas only if her enemies used it first. The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said Berlin political circles termed Churchill's declaration "provocative."

Britons began checking over their gas masks, with which every resident of Britain is equipped, after Herbert Morrison, minister of home security, cautioned them two days ago the danger of the use of gas was not past. His warning followed the assertion of Wing Commander E. J. Hudsoll, inspector-general of civil defense, that "if Hitler thought he could secure tactical surprise by using gas he certainly would."

Churchill's statement said the reports of Germany's intentions had come from "several sources." A Soviet official, meanwhile, declared "we have passed on to the British foreign office information that supplies of gas recently have been reaching the German armies on the Russian front."

Slightly less than a year ago, Churchill commented on similar reports that the Germans were testing the use of gas in the Crimea, where the official Russian news agency Tass said German troops had used land mines containing poison gas.

The Chinese have accused Japan of using poison gas.

Claim Secret Papers Bare Gas Use Plans

NEW YORK —(AP)— Soviet officials were quoted today by CBS Correspondent Bill Downs in a broadcast from Moscow as claiming proof the Germans were preparing to resort to the use of poison gas on the Russian front.

He said the Soviet publication "Agitator" reported secret German documents captured at the front disclosed. Adolf Hitler's plans for a "chemical offensive."

He said the "Agitator" called for stringent measures to cope with the Nazis' anticipated use of gas and gave instructions as to antidotes for dealing with it.

U. S. Threatens To Call Army To Remove UMW Pickets.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The government today threatened to call in the army unless John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers union removed its picket line from the Newark plant of the Celanese Corporation of America.

Warning the union of army intervention, the War Labor Board said that the picket line is "a flagrant violation of labor's no-strike pledge to the president" and has greatly hampered production of war material.

Employes of the war plant are represented in collective bargaining by the Textile Workers union, CIO, under a contract which expires next December. The UMW threw its picket line around the plant about a week ago as a move in its jurisdictional dispute with the textile workers.

COUPLE WED AT HOME OF BRIDE'S PARENTS

Miss Lois Maxine Grove Married to Sgt. C. A. Bowman By Rev. James L. Boyer; Newlyweds to Leave This Week for Fayetteville, N. C.

IN THE PRESENCE of immediate families and a few friends, Miss Lois Maxine Grove and Staff Sergeant Charles A. Bowman were united in marriage by Rev. James L. Boyer of the United Brethren church at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Grove, South Franklin avenue.

The bride was attired in a powder blue street length dress with navy blue accessories. She wore a pearl necklace which was a gift from the groom. Her corsage was of gardenias.

Miss Elaine Logas, close friend of the new Mrs. Bowman, was the bride's only attendant. She wore a beige suit with navy blue accessories and a corsage of yellow rosebuds. Fred Zimmerman served as best man.

The ceremony was performed at 3 p. m. Tuesday.

The former Miss Grove is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and has been employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. Staff Sergeant Bowman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Bowman, Bowman street, attended Mansfield Senior high school and was employed at Westinghouse before entering the armed forces.

COTTONLEATHER NEW SUBSTANCE FOR SHOE SOLES

Devised In Small Southern Mill, Plastic Fabric Fills Wartime Need.

(By Associated Press)

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—Cottonleather, a new plastic produced by four young men and a girl in a small asbestor textile mill, soon will be making shoe soles for millions of Americans.

Big business is taking over the manufacture, for possibly 5,000,000 pairs of shoes annually. But the achievement is strictly a feat of little business. It was accomplished in a home-made, pine board laboratory, using a combination of hand-made, second-hand and new machinery, at the mill of the Southern Friction Materials company, down behind a woodsy hill at the edge of Charlotte.

Cottonleather is heavy, woven cotton fabric of the sort used to drive machine pulleys, impregnated with a special plastic binder. This forms a tan-colored solid, as hard but as flexible as sole leather.

The cotton fabric used is at present a surplus, due partly to reduction in manufacture of newsprint. The machines suited to making this cotton weave have been idle to quite an extent. The binder is inexpensive and not required for war.

The small plant rolls out cottonleather at the rate of a mile in four hours. That does not begin to fill present requests, so the company plans to license the process to large manufacturers. A contract has been closed with the Homasote company at Trenton, N. J., licensing that firm for manufacture and selling rights in the north, west and southwestern states.

The president of Southern Friction Materials is stocky Howard Snow whose acquaintances call him "the man with the overcoat," because he carries one when no one else does. Snow came to this mill as manager on a salary of $50 a week and orders to show a profit or liquidate the works. That was in 1932; 1942 was the eleventh consecutive profitable year.

Snow is the son of Charles Henry Snow, who for 40 years was dean of engineering at New York university. Howard Snow was graduated in engineering and worked in the advertising end of the McGraw-Hill Publishing company before coming here. Now he is principal owner of the Southern Friction Materials company.

BAKER HAS PROBLEM

SAN PEDRO, Cal.—(U.P.)—Pietro D. Carlo, baker, is facing a major war problem in his occupation. As a result of Secretary of Agriculture Wickard's order to bakers to deliver only uncut bread, he says he will never be able to meet the demands of his principal client—which happens to be the army.

HE LEARNS

SAN JOSE, Cal.—(U.P.) Patrolman Doug Daley has learned how to be a bee expert—the hard way. When a call came to the fire department for Capt. Carl O'Dell, the fire company's bee expert, to come and corral a swarm of bees, he said he would come after he had finished his dinner.

Patrolman Daley decided the captain probably would be a long time eating and undertook the job himself. He succeeded beautifully except for the few that escaped and stung him. But now, he says, he knows how to prevent escapes.

BOOK DESCRIBES WAR CHANGES IN CAPE COD LIFE

'Journal For Josephine' By Nathan Among New Releases at City's Library.

Robert Nathan, who has scored so many successes with his poetry and whimsical novels, has turned his hand to a different type of writing in JOURNAL FOR JOSEPHINE, a journal which he kept during the past summer while he and his family were living in their home in North Truro, Cape Cod, Mass.

The book, which is among the new books to be placed on the shelves of the Mansfield Public library Saturday, is a journal of living and thinking—quietly picturing how the war has changed the traditional life of the Cape and yet how some of its most satisfying aspects are still intact.

WHITE MAMMOTHS by Alexander Poliakov is the dramatic story of Russian tanks in action by the author of "Russians Don't Surrender," who now tells the story of the "White Mammoths," the tremendous KV tanks which are helping to turn the tide against the Nazis—of the workers who built them, and of the gallant men who fight in them. It is packed with action.

TWIN RIVERS: THE RARITAN AND THE PASSAIC, by Harry Emerson Wildes, is a new volume in the Rivers of America series. It is a fast-moving, rollicking biography of two rivers, the Raritan and the Passaic, from the Battle of Monmouth to the battle of the New Jersey trusts, by way of the Industrial Revolution and the Ferryboat War and through the pages move many New Jerseyites, famous and infamous.

BEHIND THE JAPANESE MASK, by Jesse F. Steiner, is a presentation of the life, customs, mental processes, social etiquette religion, moral ideas, philosophy, and education of the Japanese, and it clarifies the delusions which have been so fatal in the past, and gives the reader sound and invaluable knowledge of the Japenese people. Prof. Steiner taught English at North Japan college in Sendai, for seven years.

Other non-fiction includes: STRIP FOR ACTION, Lindsay and Crouse; MITCHELL: PIONEER OF AIR POWER, Levine; WE CANNOT ESCAPE HISTORY, Whitaker: ON NATIVE GROUNDS, Kazin: MENTAL ILLNESS, Stern; GLIMPSES INTO CHILD LIFE, Zeligs; WHAT READING DOES TO PEOPLE, Waples; TESTED ONE-ACT PLAYS, Sams, ed.; ELECTRICAL ILLUMINATION: Kraehenbuehl; BEHIND THE SULFA DRUGS, Galdston, M. D.

MOUNT ALLEGRO by Jerre Mangione is a light-hearted, sympathetic story of the Italian-American colony in Rochester, N. Y. There is Papa Gasparino who has no peer in baking bread or making wine: Uncle Luigi; Uncle Nino, who has intellect, and host of others. Jerre Mangione knows these people of whom he writes for he was born among them.

SEARCH FOR A KEY by Walter Duranty is a novel about a foreign correspondent who witnessed—at first hand—the history-making events in Russia, in China, in Germany, that led into the present war, and who searched for the meaning of life in the midst of the political upheavals of our times.

CHICKEN EVERY SUNDAY, by Rosemary Taylor, is a pleasant story about a happy family in Tucson before that city was a fashionable resort. Mother began with one boarder and then built larger and larger houses as her business grew. She fed them well and charged them well, but father was a hopeful promoter and their bank account was a joint one, so mother was obliged to spend her money to have it. Father liked the women boarders young and pretty, but mother seldom had room for that kind. The boarders were part of the family and everyone had a food time in a helter-skelter house where the good meals were the only certainty.

Other fiction includes:

AGAINST A DARKENING SKY, Lewis; FRIDAY, THANK GOD, Rives; THE BLACK ANGEL, Woolrich.

High In Scholarship Tests

Shown above are three pupils of Woodville school who were highest scorers among pupils of Madison and Mifflin township schools taking eighth year scholarship tests given by the state department of education. They are left to right Charles Campbell, Marie Ellis and Robert Criblez. Nearly 100 eighth grade pupils participated in the tests.

COMES TO COURT

LOS ANGELES, Cal. —(U.P.)— Israel P. Bower has brought suit for $2,000 damages against H. F. Berry, alleging that a coatimundi or Brazilian ant bear which lives by eating ants, and belonging to the latter, had mistaken him for an ant.

He alleges the bear first tried him out for eating purposes by taking a nip at his ankles and then at his wrist. Berry had the ant bear led in to court by his three young daughters just to show that he is perfectly tame and not addicted to making mistakes in his diet.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Books about Uncle Sam's ships —fighting ships—are equally interesting to young and old alike. Two of the new books which will be placed on the shelves of the children's section of the Mansfield Public library Saturday tell of submarines and aircraft carriers.

HE'S IN SUBMARINES NOW, by Henry Palsen, gives the story of the careful selection of submarine sailors from the group who volunteer for this dangerous service. Their training is described and illustrated here for young readers. Some will become officers and nearly all will be in the midst of a battle zone when their training is completed. What can be revealed of routines of service has been included here.

AIRCRAFT CARRIER, by Robert A. Winston, a navy lieutenant, shows how the aircraft carrier has changed the course of the war. The author has given a description of the craft and of the men who serve aboard. Many of the famous carriers are pictured and some battle formations are illustrated.

Other new books include GEORGE WESTINGHOUSE, by H. Gordon Garbedian, the thrilling true story of industrial progress and the man who helped to make it, and STORIES FROM THE GREAT METROPOLITAN OPERAS, by Helen Dike, a book for young music lovers filled with tunes, colored illustrations of characters and brief stories of the favorite operas.

American farmers have been asked to produce 57 billion quarts of milk in 1943.

FLAKORN CORN MUFFIN MIX

SUCCESS! No more "bad luck" corn muffins. Flakorn's ingredients are precision-mixed. No measuring, no sifting, no guesswork. Just add egg and milk and you'll have 12 to 18 tender corn muffins at every baking.

Speakers Listed For Red Cross Recruiting Rally

Miss Mary McDevitt, chief consultant for the fifth Red Cross area, and Lieut. Edna E. Sharritt, Army Nurse Corps, will speak at the Red Cross Nurse recruiting rally to be held at John Simpson Junior high next Tuesday.

Mansfield's part in recruiting for the 36,000 army and navy nurses will be explained by the nurses. Recruiting of nurses is one of the largest jobs yet assigned to the Red Cross. A monthly quota of 50 nurses has been set for the Cleveland area of which Mansfield is a part.

Ten nurses from Mansfield General hospital are already serving with the army and navy here and overseas. Ruth Kirkpatrick and Madonna Viers are on duty in Australia. Helen Becker is stationed in Panama and Mann Menrath and Mary Turich are at Norfolk, Va. Florence Sherer recently reported for duty at Atlanta, Ga., and May Ellen Spreisterback and Margaret Beam are on duty at Fort Knox, Ky. Frances Crone is now in England and Eleanor Studor is stationed in Trinidad.

WHITE AGAIN

LOS ANGELES —(U.P.)— When a homely little mutt of a dog named Mummer jumped into a tar pit here, her 4-year-old mistress, Margaret Miller jumped in also to rescue her then her sister, Dolores, 8, jumped in to save both. They were finally rescued by Caretaker James Shelton, in charge of the tar pits, before they sank out of sight, and rushed to a hospital where, by various chemical processes, they were rendered white again. Even the dog was successfully restored to its normal color.
